Prologue

"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women, merely players."

William Shakespeare

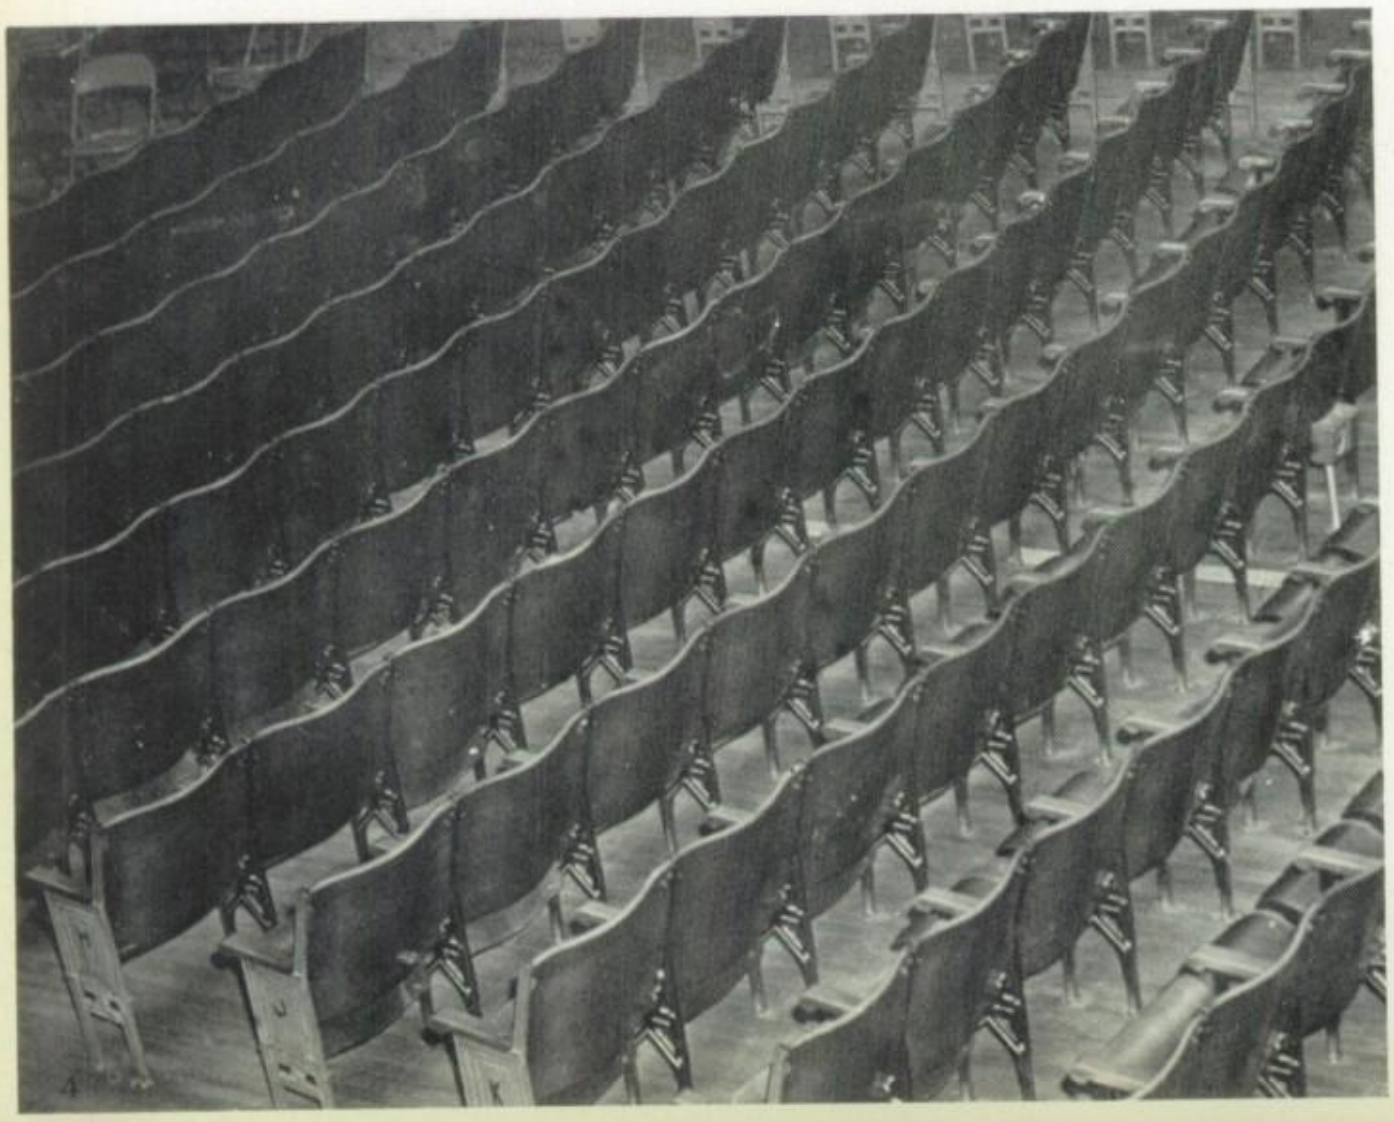
Why have a yearbook? The answer isn't as obvious as it seems. Any intelligent answer would have to include the dual concepts of reliving the past as it really happened and recapturing the spirit of the times.

Your book will increase in value as time goes on, as will your own memories. Years from now this period of your life will have much greater meaning than it has now.

This year the annual is portrayed on a stage, the kind of stage that William Shakespeare spoke of in the quote above. A play is really no more than a reflection of those who are playing life's parts. The title of the play is "Our Year." Your guide through the play will be the narrator, who will analyze the year and point out some of the deeper meanings. He is not one of us, yet he is a part of all of us. We wish to represent the spirit of the class and not any particular individuals; therefore the characters are fictional composites.

The scenes will be shown by moving a spotlight from place to place on the stage, shining on both the good and bad, the superlative and the mediocre. We hope the scenes portrayed will stimulate your memories and understanding, and that you will see that the world really is a stage and that you are the players.

The Staff



Narrator: Our play is set in . . .

. . . America,

our forefather's

dream realized,

anchored by valleys and hills.

Iowa -

where America tills.

Clinton -

with age like its river, but . . .

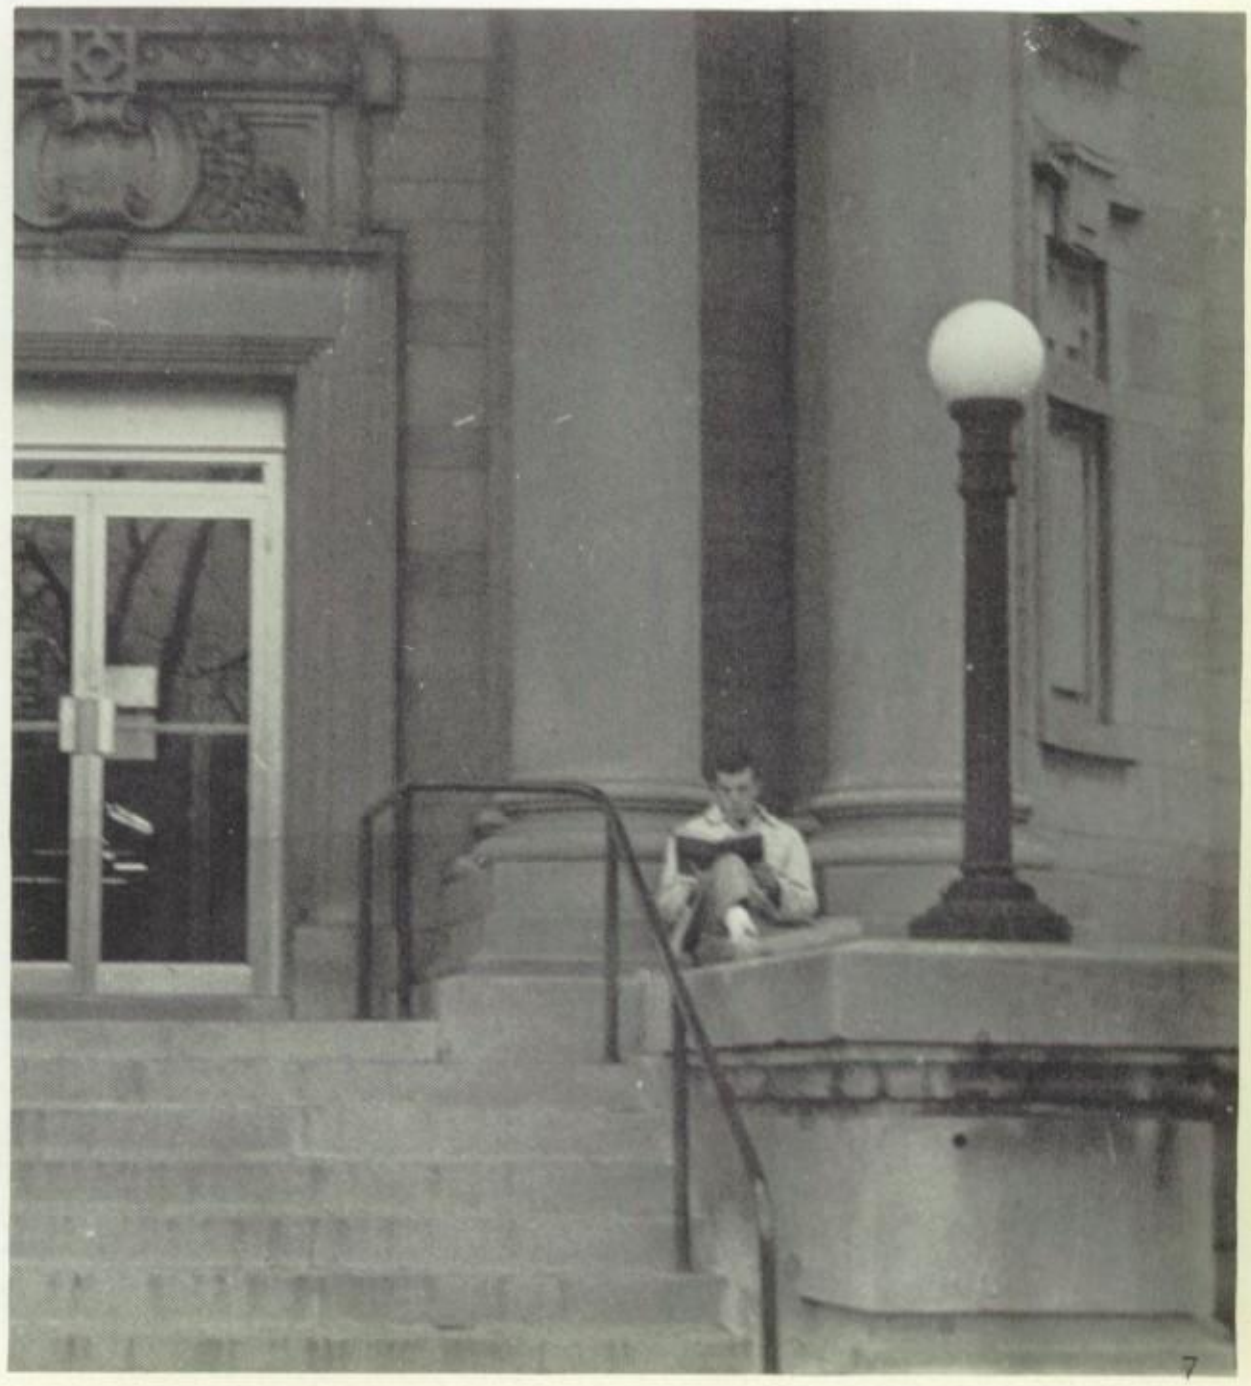
young in ideas

like its youth.



The characters in our play manipulate many moods:

humility-

arrogance-

patience-

loneliness-

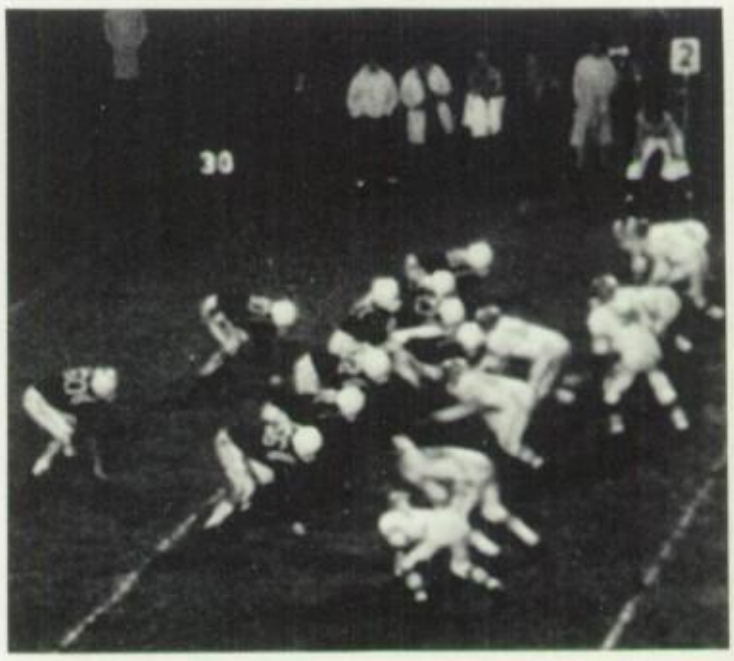
And sometimes-

Just sometimes-

Something near perfection . . .

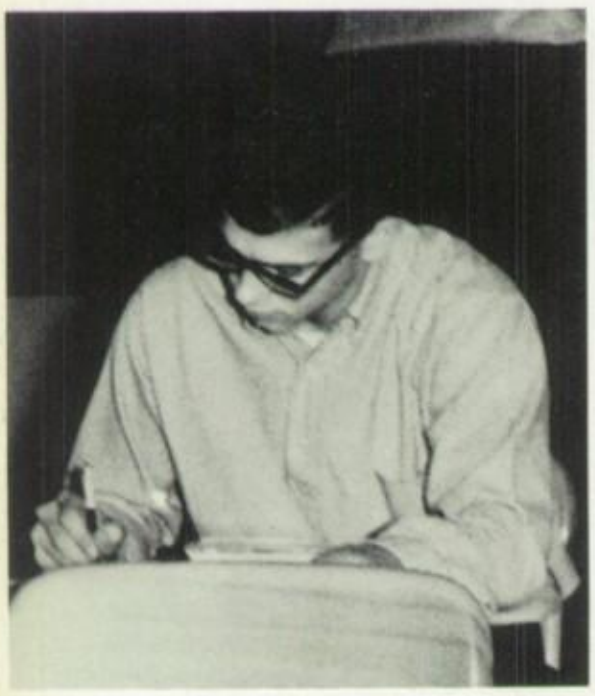
Senior (from balcony) : But you forget the other side of our year at C. H. S.

Narrator: English themes-



Ecstatic screams-

Football teams-



Impossible dreams. . .

laughing, talking,

scheming, walking,

hard work,

home work,

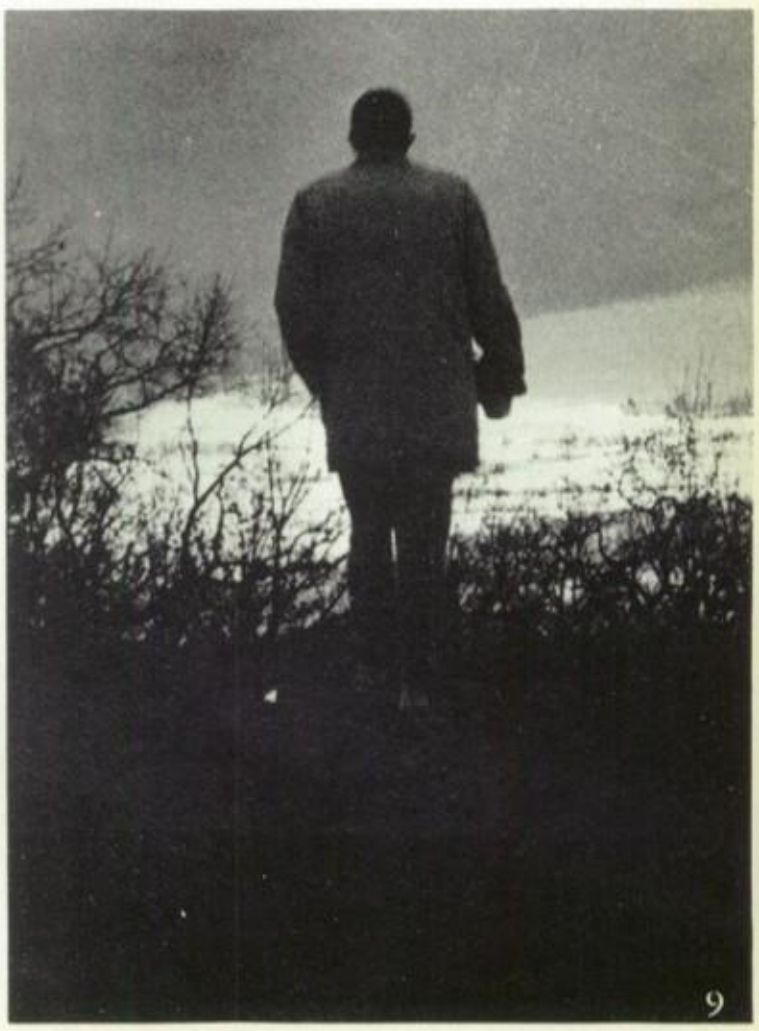
slow work,

no work,

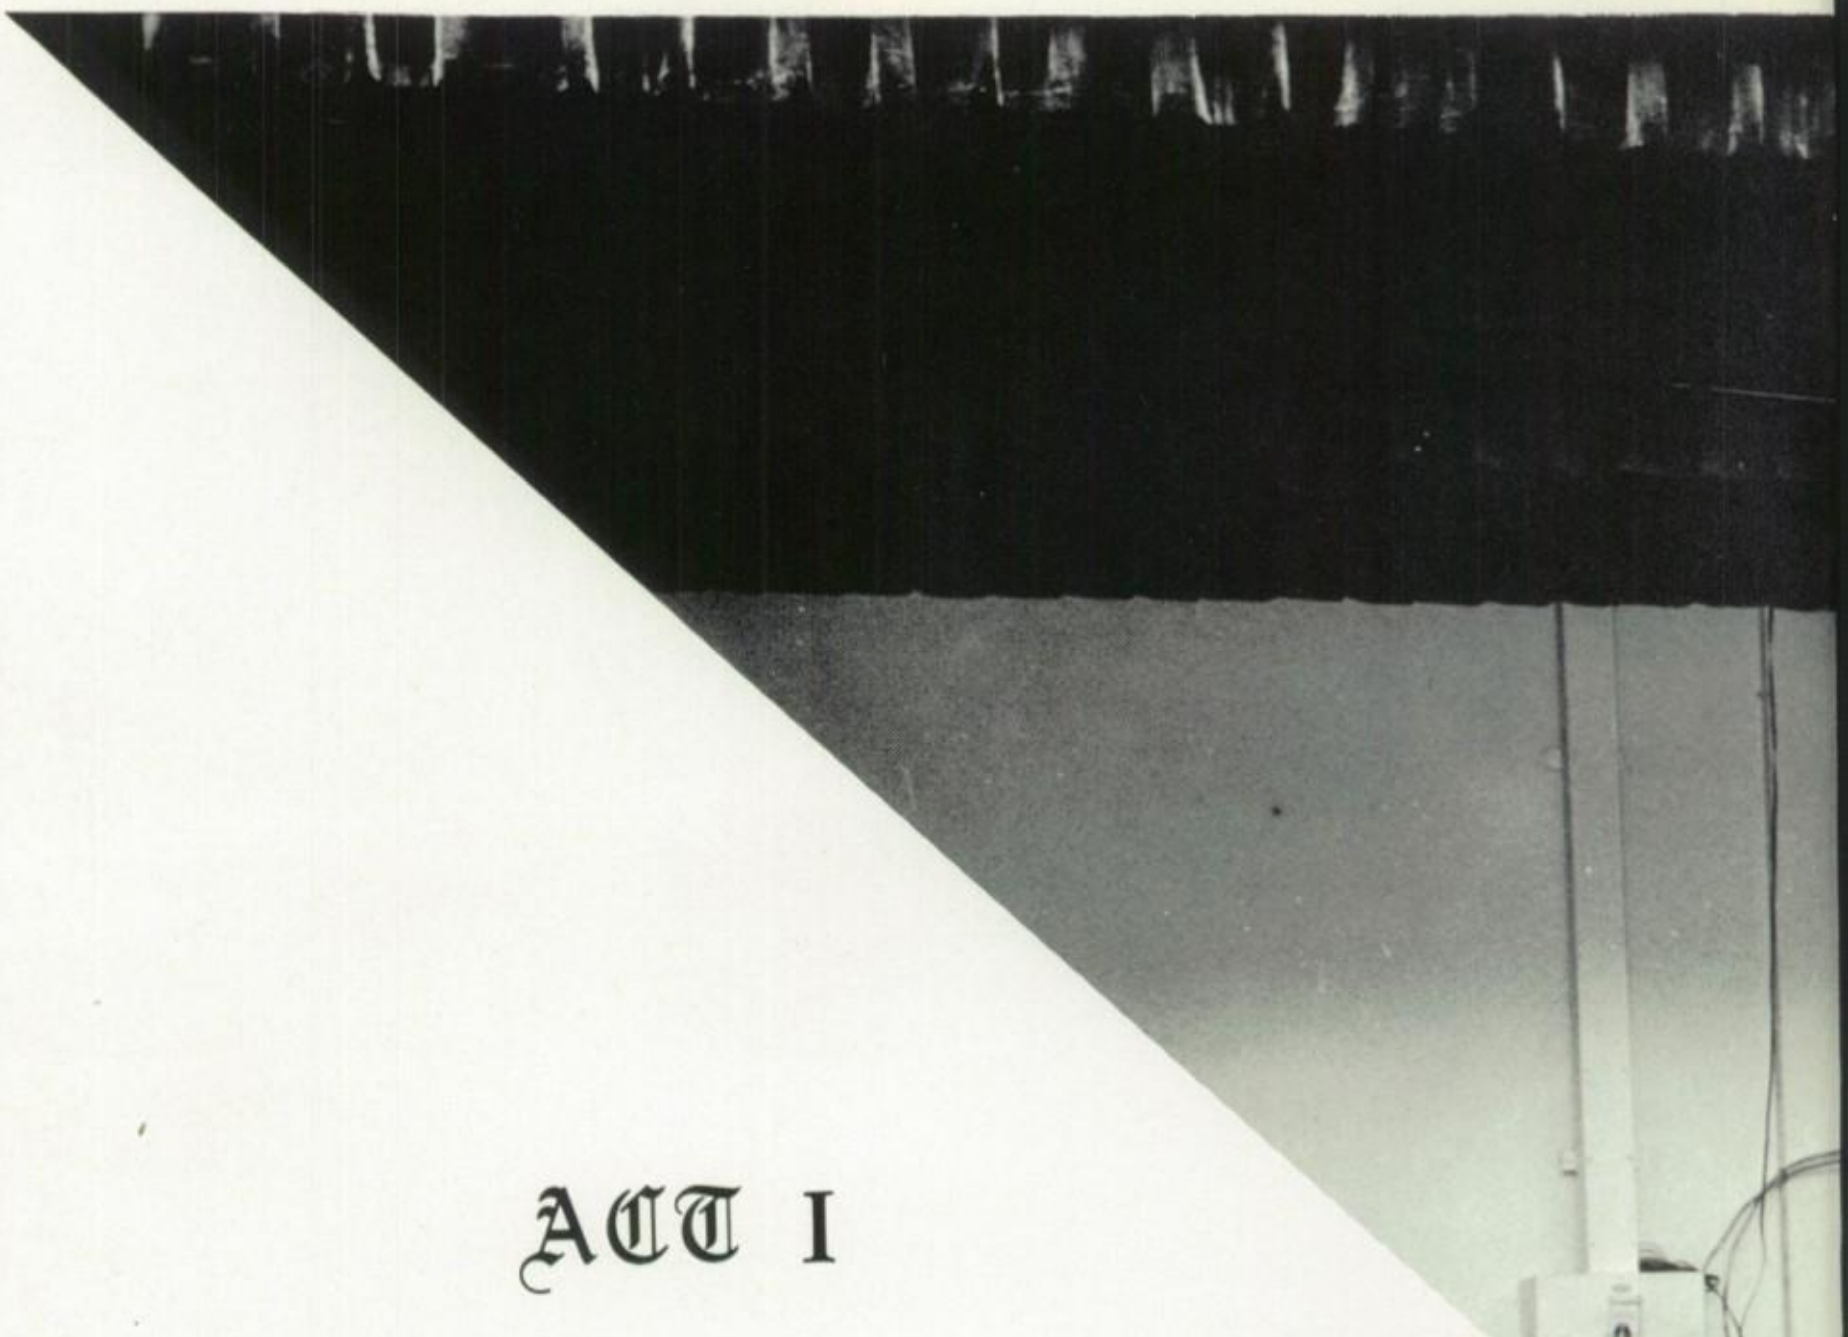
highlights, limelights,

spotlights . . .

twilight . . .



the satisfaction of accomplishment.



ACT I

SCENE. (CHS. Auditorium. Stage is bare of scenery. Dark except for Spotlight on Down Right revealing high stool. NARRATOR enters and sits on stool.)

NARRATOR. Hello, there. Tonight's play is a visual history of our year at Clinton High. It begins where our year really began, more than a year ago in February of 1961. You seniors were juniors then. The juniors, sophomores, and the sophomores were either back at Junior High or here as freshman. It is Junior Carnival time, and . . .

VOICE. (from audience) Hey! Where's the scenery?

NARRATOR. Oh yes, I did want to say something about this bare stage. Well, first of all, this way you can see the characters for what they really are, without a lot of props for them to hide behind. Besides, this is where Act I begins, with the juniors getting ready for their Carnival. It will end out on the football field, with last year's seniors graduating, and in between, you'll see the Prom and Gateway Classics. But let's get started now with the Junior Carnival, 1962.

NARRATOR. In the weeks and months preceding the Carnival, the Juniors tried desperately to keep their minds on lectures and homework, while their thoughts wandered to making their big night a reality. Right now, backstage, the properties committee is transforming canvas flats into the showboat, S. S. Riverking.

JANE. This sure doesn't look much like a showboat.

LARRY. Don't worry. It'll look better when we get the rest of the flats together.

PAT. I'm tired. It's after five already. We're sure doing a lot of work for only one night.

LARRY. You can't put on a Carnival without a lot of time and hard work.

DICK. You're making it sound like just a lot of dull drudgery. Sure it takes time and it's hard work, but it seems more like fun to me.

(Exit JANE, LARRY, PAT, AND DICK.)

NARRATOR. Different attitudes, different ideas. Work for some, fun for others. This is a Junior Carnival.

(Enter TOM and group of JUNIORS.)

It's night now. The props committee went home a few hours ago. Weary and tired Juniors are working, as they've worked nearly every night this week, improving their talent show.

TOM. (from right aisle) All right, everybody in the first act get back up on stage, and we'll go through this again. Let's make it good 'cause we don't want to have to stay here all night.

NARRATOR. Excuse me, but are you the director?

TOM. I guess you might say that.

NARRATOR. How's it coming? It looks like everyone is getting a real workout.

Docks at Clinton High

TOM. We sure are. This is going to be the best talent show Clinton High has ever seen. It's an all-junior show this year, and we really have a lot of talent to work with. But there's still a long way to go before we'll be satisfied with it. (To JUNIORS) OK, take it from the top.

(Exit TOM and JUNIORS As Spotlight moves with NARRATOR to stage center. SCENE. Backstage, wing of CHS auditorium.)

NARRATOR. We'd better leave them to their work, and pick up the thread of the Carnival on the morning of the publicity assembly. In a little while the student body will get a twenty minute preview of the show.

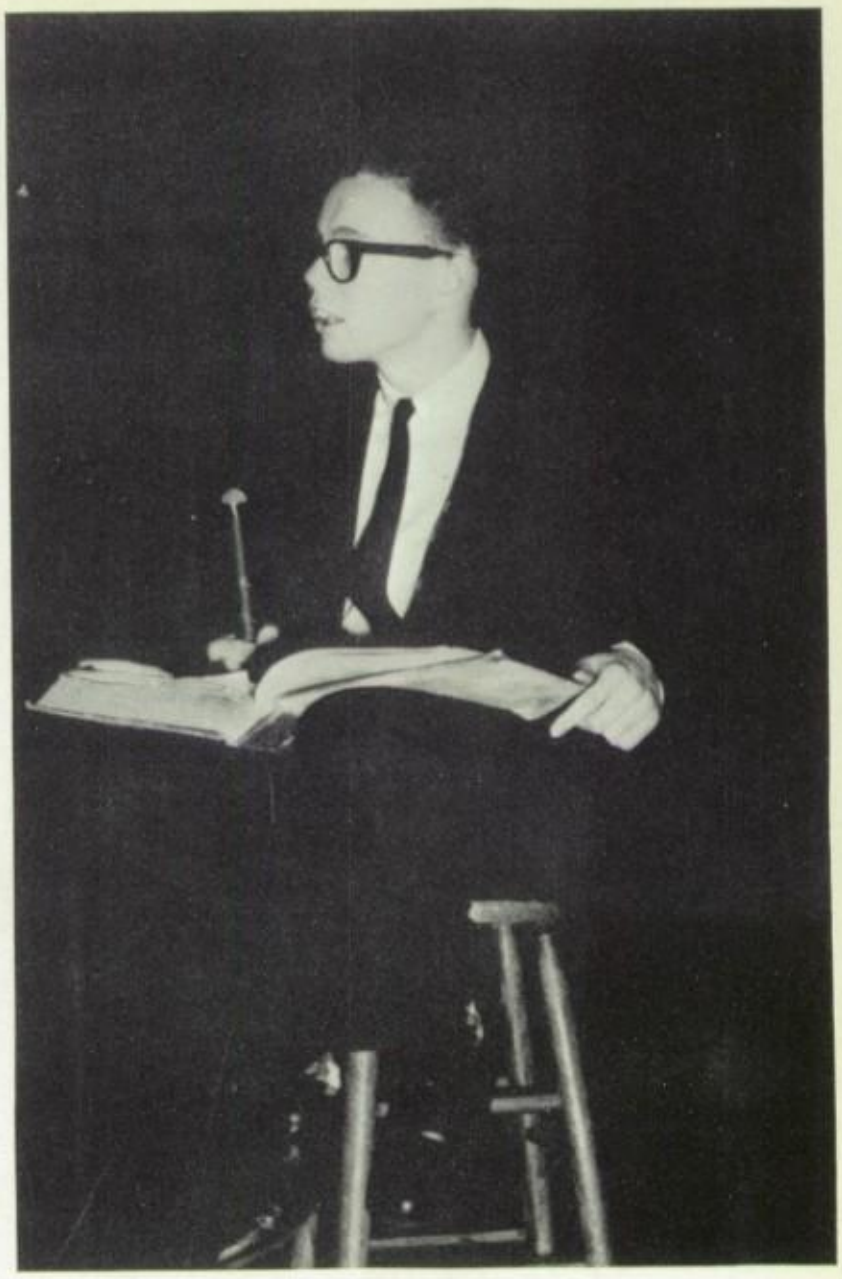
(Enter DICK and STEVE.)

DICK. Excuse me, Mister . . . Hurry up, Steve, we're on in a minute.

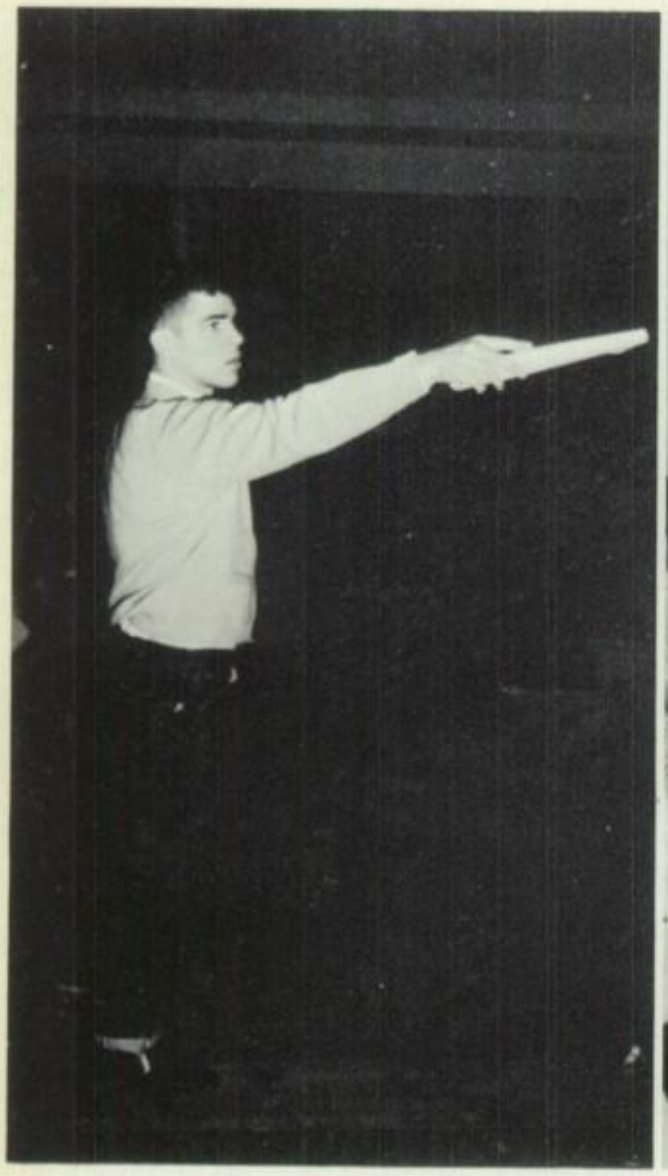
STEVE. Watch me mess up the whole show!

DICK. Don't worry . . . just relax. We can't help but get across how great this carnival is going to be.

(Exit DICK and STEVE.)



Jane Morton, Barb Aldrich, Ruthanne Dempsey, Carol Putney, Susan Jacobsen, Mary Beth Depue, Carla Wahl, Carol Borup.



Seemingly endless hours of rehearsals culminated in a professional quality talent show. It took the talents of several individuals like the student director, Tom Hagge to point out flaws and weaknesses in the numbers . . . the careful hands of dozens of girls like Mary Beth DePue and Vicki Rutenbeck to prepare the decorations . . . wit and repartee from facile minds like Steve Meyer's and Tom Burlingame's.

While the performers tried to calm the swarms of butterflies in their stomachs, the concessionaires held sway. At last the crowd had poured into the auditorium--Curtain time was now!

Rita Friis bids farewell to her dear ol' Sis!

NARRATOR. The assembly was a success, and students emerged from the auditorium anxious to see the actual carnival. It's now the Saturday of the Carnival. This morning, juniors busily put the last touches on decorations at CHS. By noon the halls of Clinton High had been transformed into Bourbon Street, New Orleans; the S. S. River-king had been erected in the auditorium; and the girl's gym had become a Mardi Gras. This afternoon after the final dress rehearsal, juniors went home to get ready for the finale to two months of hard work. When they returned, to their dismay, Old Man Winter had blown up quite a storm, but it wasn't enough to keep them away tonight.

ANN. Gee, this is really great! There're so many people here. Look at all the concessions.

BOB. Come on, Ann, the talent show's going to start in a few minutes.

ANN. OK, I'm coming. I just wanted to get another look at all this.

(Exit ANN and BOB.)

NARRATOR. The concessions are closing their doors now. Students have hurried upstairs to the auditorium, leaving the halls littered with confetti and crepe paper. The auditorium doors bang shut, and the audience settles down for an hour's entertaimnent.

(Spotlight follows NARRATOR back to Center Left. Group of JUNIORS singing "When the Saints Go Marching In." Curtain closes, there is confusion backstage. Enter BUD, BILL, STEVE.)

The show is almost over now, so let's go backstage and catch some of the reactions. Everyone seems to be in a hurry, but . . .

BUD. Boy, am I glad that's over. Did you hear that applause? They really liked it.

BILL. I can't believe it! It went over better than I expected.

STEVE. Yeah! And State Champs in swimming too! Boy! What a night!

(Exit BUD, BILL, STEVE.)

NARRATOR. The talent show is over now, and it was even more wonderful than the juniors had hoped. All the weeks and months of hard work have been climaxed by this one spectacular

The Stevedores put forth their best foot before loading the boat.

hour, and as the juniors left for the dance the smiles on their faces were evidence of the rich rewards of their labor. I think I see two smiles just a little brighter than the rest, our carnival king and queen, Chili Qualman and Doug Brown.

(Enter CHILI and DOUG. CHILI has on black face make-up, both are dressed as steve-dores.)

Congratulations

DOUG. We'd better get going if we're going to get to the dance, Chili, You don't want to miss it after all the work we put in on it.

CHILI (to NARRATOR.) I hope you're coming to the dance. The decorations are beautiful.

NARRATOR. No, I think it's about time for me to leave now.

(Exit CHILI and DOUG.)

NARRATOR. It's time for us to go now. In a few hours, the dance will be over. The last song will be played, the last bit of crepe paper will drift down to the floor, the final light will be extinguished. All that will remain will be the task of transforming Bour-bon Street, the Mardi Gras, and the S.S. Riverking back into Clinton High School. The 1962 Junior Carnival will have come to an end.

(Spotlight off.)

The passengers harmonize before boarding the S. S. Riverking!

For a boisterous finale the group assembles to sing "When the Saints Go Marching In".

The S. S. Riverking docked with its cargo of talent. Pantomime, dances, the red hot sounds of a cool combo, songs, and patter.

After a fast-paced trip down the Mississippi, the showboat dropped anchor at New Orleans for the Mardi Gras. Then, as everything must, the ball was over--a memory--to be dismantled by the cleanup committee.

NARRATOR. A little less than three months have passed since the Junior Carnival was over. Spring is here, and with it has come the Gateway classics, one of Eastern Iowa's and Western Illinois' biggest track and field events. In a few seconds, an anxious student body will find out who will be their 1962 Gateway Queen.

BEN. (Stepping to Right Front) The Queen of the 1962 Gateway Classics is Janet Legget.

NARRATOR. Let's leave now and come back tomorrow night to see the finals.

(Exit all but NARRATOR.)

NARRATOR. Moline finished first with 72 points. Cedar Rapids, Jefferson, 54. We took third with 38 1/2 points. Rock Island made it close with 37 points.)

(Enter COACH.)

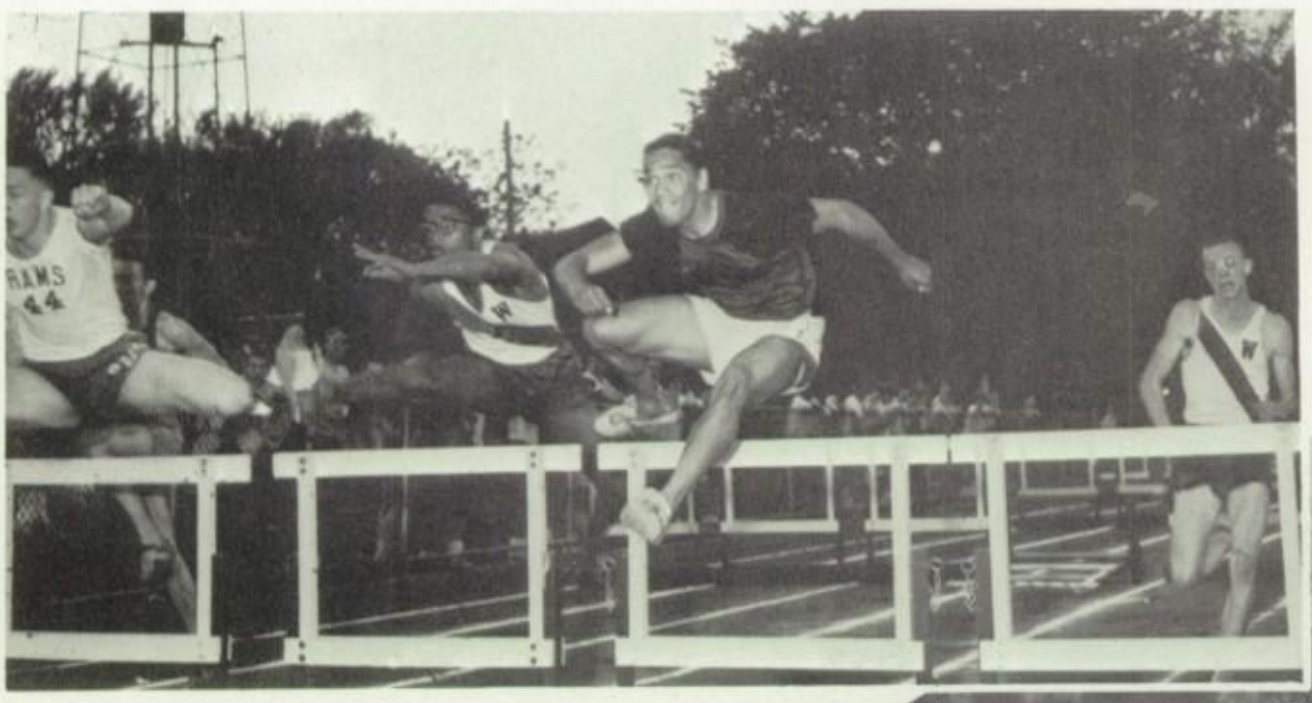
Say, if you have a minute, could you fill us in on how the Kings did.

Cloud Classics . . .

COACH. It sure is wet out here, but we didn't do too bad. Wright took the mile for us -- 4:50.2. Hamstra and Seemater gave us a second and third in the discus. Let's see now. As far as third places, there was the eight-eighty relay and the mile relay. And Brothers and Nesbitt came up with 3rds in Broad Jump and eight-eighty where Law came in 4th. And . . . Oh, yes, Bartels came up with a 4th in the four-forty.

(Exit COACH.)

NARRATOR. As far as the team then we did all right. It was mostly the weather that made this one of the poorest Gateway Classics. The field lights are dimming now. It's getting late. Most activities at CHS will stop until Monday morning when school begins, so let's wait until then to continue our story. (Spotlight off.)



A Whispered Sayonara

NARRATOR. After the Classics is over, the thoughts of students turned to the Prom. For weeks ahead of time, Juniors work and plan to turn the gym into the Orient for one special night. Their work pays off when they see the red, yellow, and orange ceiling, the Tori gates, and the pagoda all in place when they enter the Orient at 9:00 on May 18. The gym is about filled with couples now, and the time has come to announce the Prom King and Queen.

LARRY. The Queen is . . . Janelle Larkin!

JANELLE. (Walks to stage, Larry places crown on her head, and hands her a gift) Thank you, everybody!!

LARRY. And now the King is . . . Ron Murphy!

RON. (Walks to stage, Larry places crown on his head and hands him his gift) Thanks a lot.

LARRY. Now the grand march will begin.

NARRATOR. The grand march over, the students, faculty, and other guests will enjoy the dancing, decorations, and refreshments, until one o'clock, when it will be time to leave and go to the show and breakfast put on by the Jaycees.

SENIOR BOY. Boy, am I dead. It was a great dance, though.

JUNIOR GIRL. I sure am tired myself. All those nights working on decorations have caught up with me.

SENIOR. You'll really miss that work next year, though.

JUNIOR. Oh, I don't know. I think it would be nice to have it all put on for you, to be able to come all relaxed, and not have to worry about whether everyone likes it or not.

SENIOR. You can say that now ---but wait till next year----

(Exit SENIOR BOY and JUNIOR GIRL)

NARRATOR. It's over now . . All that remains for the seniors is graduation. (Spotlight Out)

Hoisting a beflowered trellis, Ellyn Hessler and Janice Capion are hard at work transforming the Yourd Gym into an oriental garden.

Junior class prexy Larry Davis and Carol Borup lead the grand march followed by Queen Janelle Larkin and King Ron Murphy.

Thoroughly enjoying the atmosphere of the Orient, Prom couples dance to the music of Jack Payne's orchestra.

A WHISPERED SAYONORA

As we pass through the Tori gate
The mysterious East is presented at our feet.
We enter the land of the Enchanted Orient
A land of revered tradition
Of humble grace
And delicate beauty;
A poetic shangri - la.
A moment of exotic paradise
Has been created.
Enhanced by the soft strain of music
This night of deep feeling
Will soon be a treasured memory
As the evening drifts away into time.
Our lips form a whispered
"Sayonora."

An Ending

(Spotlight on Stage Center. SCENE. Football field. Enter NARRATOR.)

NARRATOR. It is the evening of June 7, and the juniors and sophomores are catching a glimpse of what is to come as the class of 1962 graduates. Let's talk to some of these seniors. Excuse me, but what are you thinking about now?

(Enter JUDY and JOHN.)

JUDY. It doesn't seem possible that I could be leaving CHS. I've been walking into that school every morning for three years, and now I'll never come back--

JOHN. Hold it--What's so bad about never going back? I sure wouldn't want to spend anymore time here.

NARRATOR. You must feel a little sad about leaving.

JOHN. Don't get me wrong. I liked it a lot, but you just can't stay at one level forever.

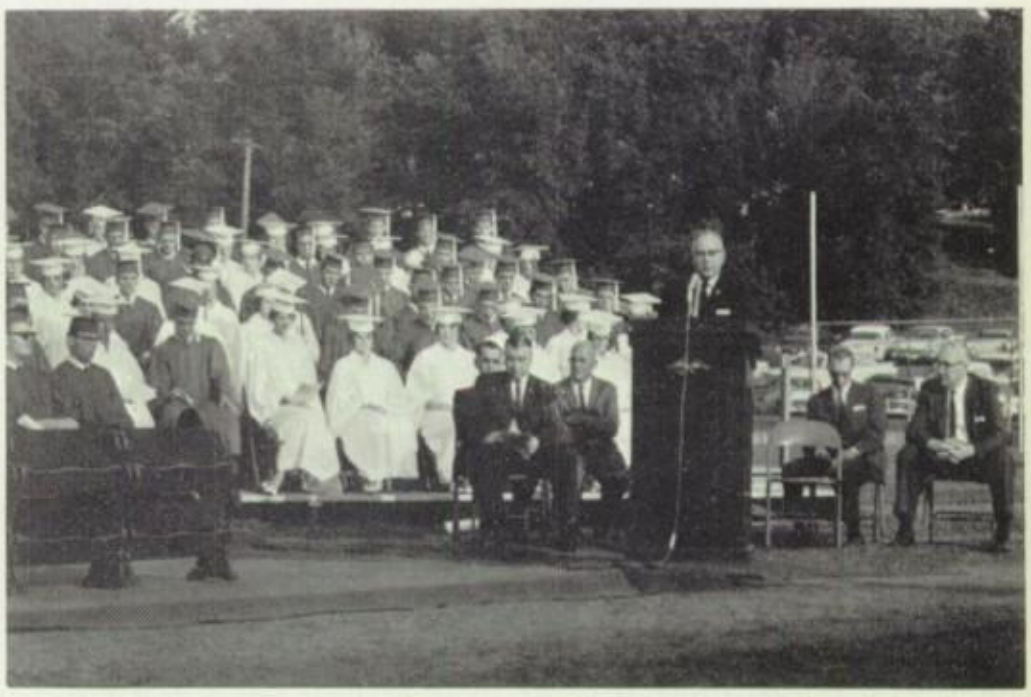
JUDY. Aren't you a little afraid, though, of the future?

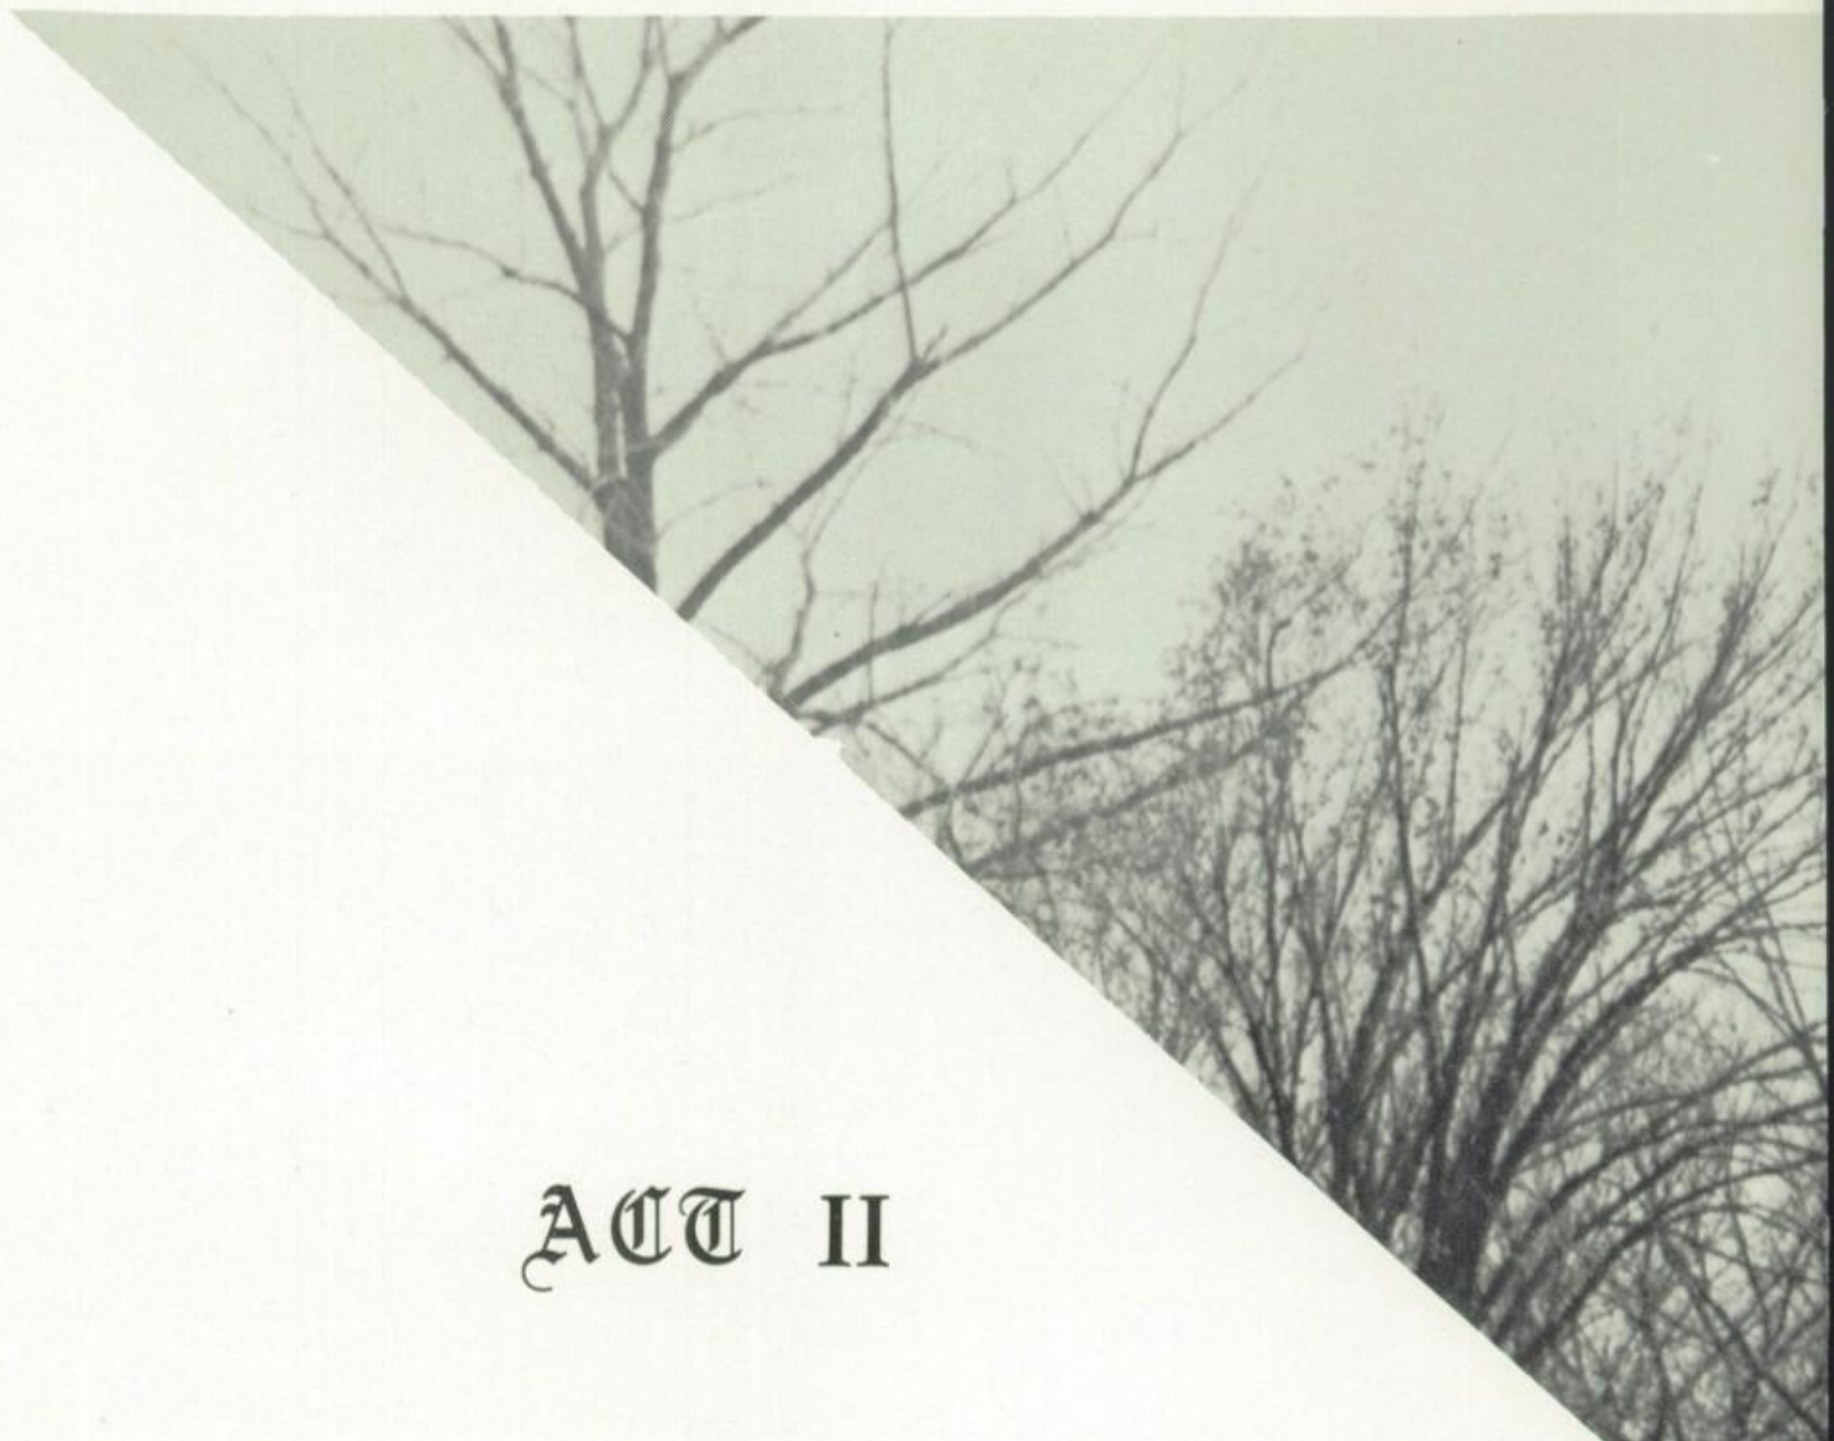
JOHN. Uncertain, maybe, but not afraid. It's going to be great--I'll be on my own and getting ready for my career.

(Exit JUDY and JOHN.)

NARRATOR. The future is waiting for them as they leave CHS with high hopes and ideals. For you who remain it holds another school year in which to get ready for the time when you'll be leaving your graduation. This seems to be a fitting time to review what we've seen so far, so let's pause a few minutes of intermission. (Spotlight out. Curtain.)

and a Beginning . . .





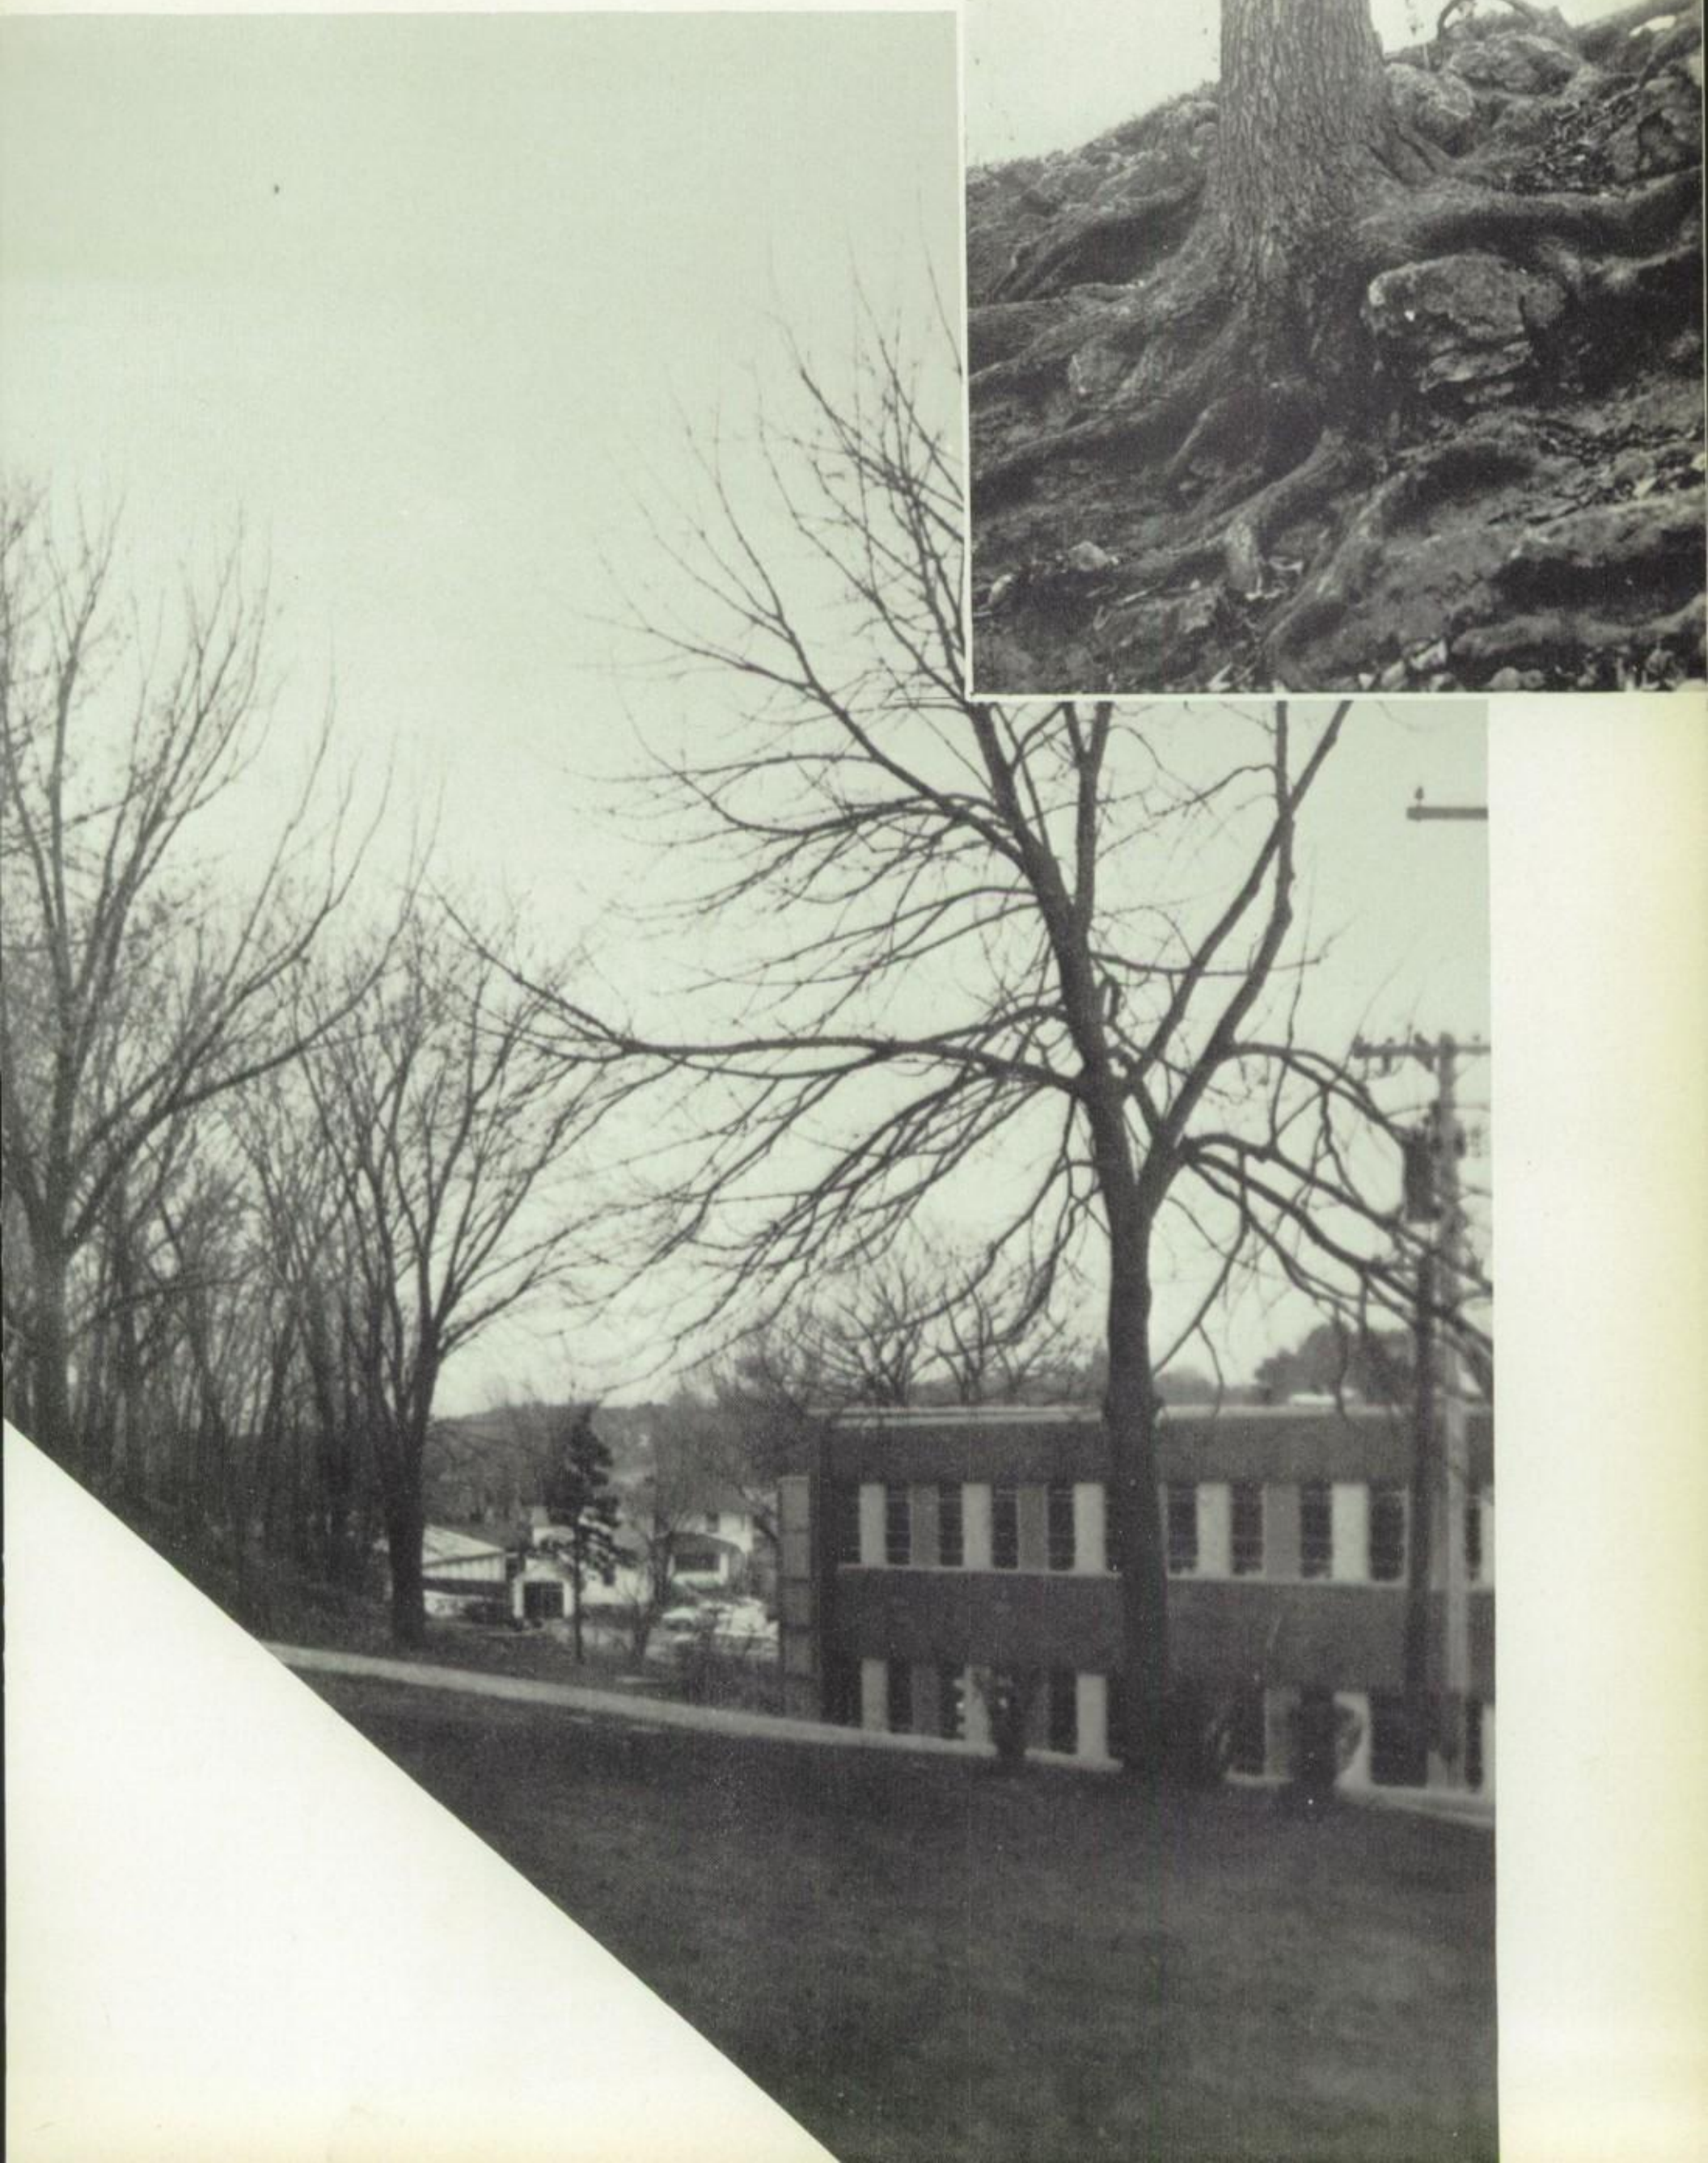
ACT II

(SCENE. CHS auditorium. Spotlight on Down Right revealing high stool. NARRATOR enters and sits on stool.)

NARRATOR. You've just seen how the Junior Carnival grew from the first conception to final realization. You've had a glimpse of how our Prom developed, a look at the Gateway queen and her court, and saw how the mood set at graduation ended a perfect year. Now we'd like to show you how the summer was spent here in Clinton.

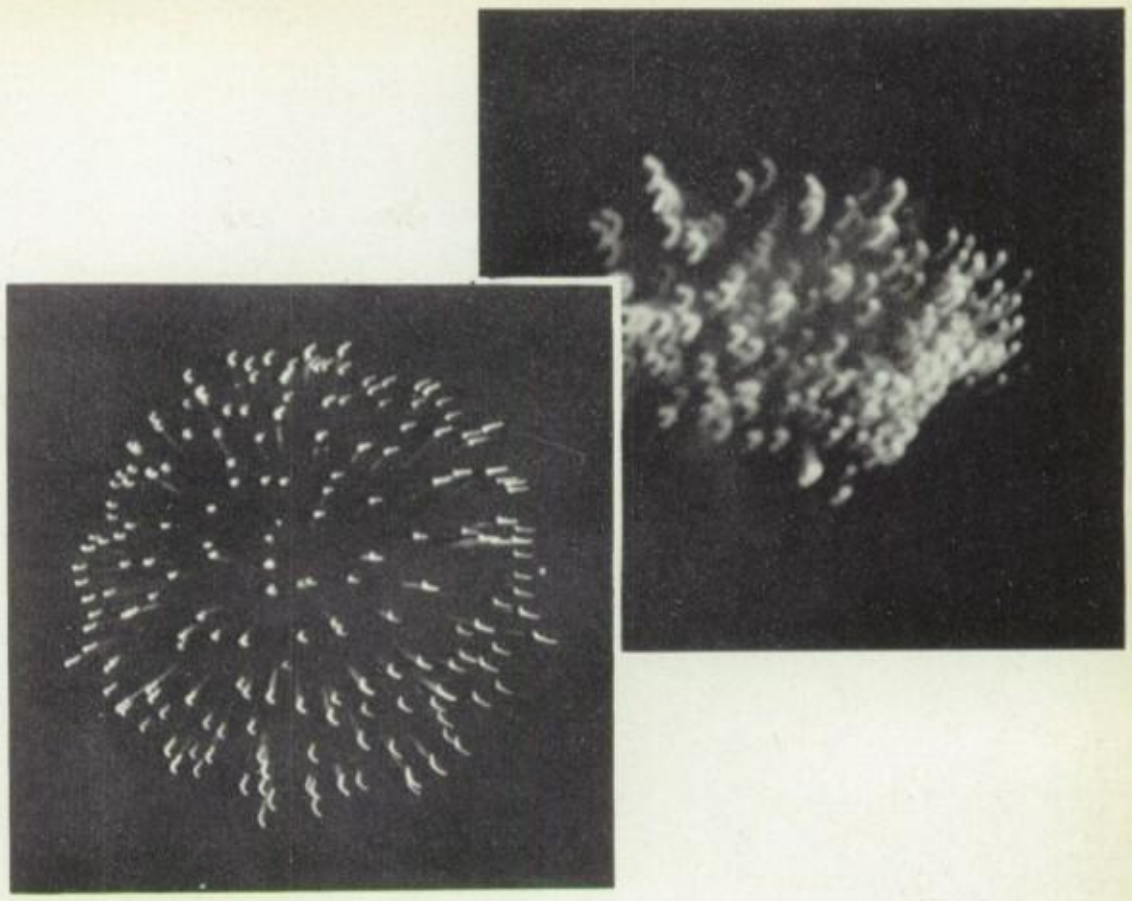
BOY. (from middle of audience) What does summer in Clinton have to do with our school year?

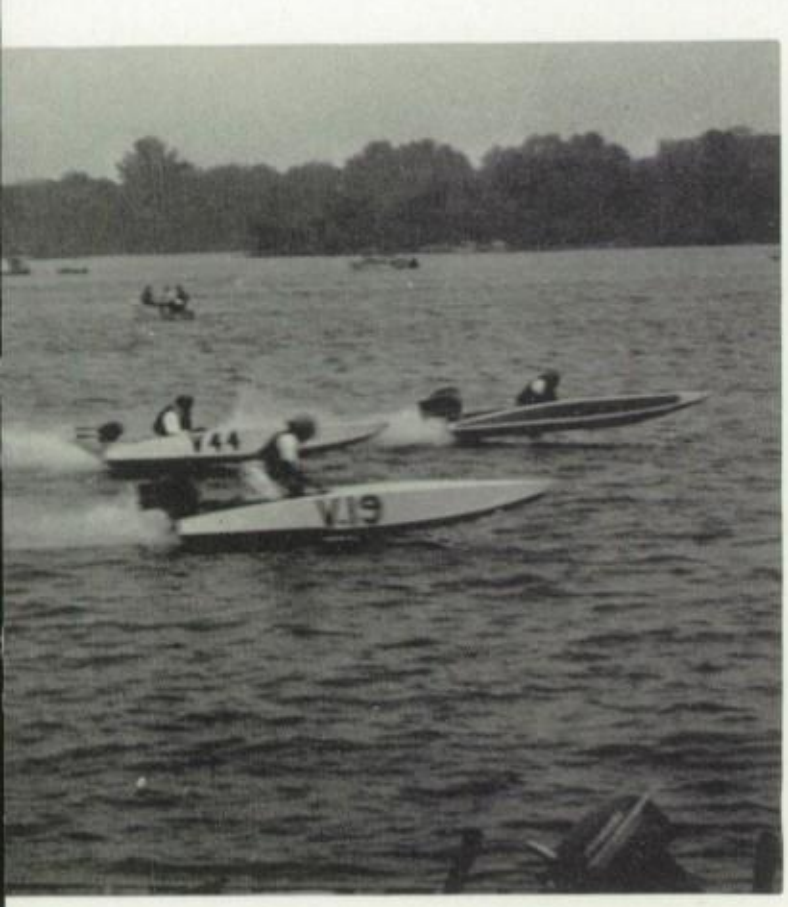
NARRATOR. The actors are the same, but we turn to a different setting. Our high school baseball team got underway with quite a successful season. The school board, principal, superintendent, and other faculty members worked laboriously during the summer months to prepare this year's curriculum and schedules. It was our first year for Riverboat Days which helped Clintonians and people from the surrounding communities celebrate the Fourth of July. During those four days July 1, 2, 3, and 4 all of Clinton crowded around the Mississippi to watch the water-ski exhibitions, sky diving, and scull boat racing. A square dance, a dance for teens, and a carnival provided even more entertainment for people of all ages and types. The four days ended with a myriad of traditional fireworks. Now let's look at these leisure months in more detail.



"Ol' Man

River"





(Spotlight moves with NARRATOR to Stage Center. SCENE. Riverfront Park.)

NARRATOR. This is the Mississippi River. The largest river in the United States and one of the greatest waterways in the world--14,000 miles of navigable waterways from up in Bemidji, Minnesota, clear down to New Orleans. "Old Man River", folks used to call it. A lot of old-time lumber barons used to use the river around Clinton to float logs to the saw mills. Clinton was a real boom town then, and fortunes were made and lost overnight. Ralph Waldo Emerson, America's first great philosopher, once walked across the river from Illinois to Clinton to give a lecture. Of course the river was frozen, but it goes to show that a lot of history was made right here in Clinton. This summer the people decided to have a Riverboat Days celebration, sort of in honor of all this history. They had a riverboat excursion, a carnival, an old fashioned fireworks display, and then they threw in a lot of fancy new stuff like parachute jumpers, water skiing, and a jazz concert. Rain threatened the celebration, and sometimes it won and sometimes the sun won, but in spite of Old Man Weather trying to mess up Old Man River, the celebration was a big success.

(Exit NARRATOR. Spotlight off.)

"Batter Up!"

(Spotlight on Baseball field after last game. Enter NARRATOR and COACH HUFF.)

NARRATOR. Throughout the summer, students watched the CHS baseball team make a fairly good showing of seven wins out of a thirteen game season. When it came to tournament competition, the Kings won three straight before falling to Iowa City in a 3-2 heart-breaker. Let's talk to the coach for a minute. How was the team this year, Coach?

COACH HUFF. It wasn't too bad. We had some pretty good sophs who ought to help our chances next year.

NARRATOR. Well, what about the upper classmen?

COACH HUFF. We had some real veterans who led the team through the season. Jones was just about our most dependable pitcher with a shutout over Fulton but Nesbitt was sure the most spectacular. I'll never forget those seventeen strike-outs he threw against Bettendorf in the state tournament.

Behind the Scenes . . .

(Spotlight on Stage Center. SCENE. School Board Office. School Board seated around table. Enter NARRATOR.)

NARRATOR. Behind the scenes, planning an entire year's schedule, is the school board.

STUDENT. How come they are in the summer act?

NARRATOR. While students were surfing and sunning, the school board was hard at work finishing up the records for the last year, and planning the curriculum for the next year. Pardon me, sir, but could you give us an idea of what some of your summer tasks were?

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER. Sure--besides having to do the bookwork, we had to order the new textbooks and all the supplies for the next year. We had to see that the maintenance of all the schools was kept up. We had to arrange the schedule of the extra-curricular events that required school grounds during the summer. Behind all the work was Mr. Mounce who had charge of coordinating things. He had to see that the Board's recommendations were carried out.

ACT III

(SCENE. CHS auditorium. Spotlight on Down Right revealing high stool. NARRATOR enters and sits on stool)

NARRATOR. We have just shown you how Riverboat Days and baseball games added to the summer fun of CHS students and how the superintendent and school board worked through the summer preparing for the coming year. Now it is time for the final and longest act of our year when the students have left their summer fun and have returned to studies and activities at school. We'll show you how the Kings handled themselves as a football team and how the cheerleaders built up school spirit in preparation for homecoming.

DAVE. Hold it. I played basketball, and I want to see something about it.

NARRATOR. There will be, along with all the other sports like swimming, wrestling, track and tennis.

PAT. Excuse me, but sports didn't occupy all the importance. Don't forget about all the clubs.

NARRATOR. Of course, we won't leave them out. They're one of the best parts of attending school. Maybe we can best satisfy you by actually beginning the last act of "Our Year."

COACH RHODES

Jack Jacobsen, T.

NARRATOR. Our River King football team, playing in the toughest High School League in the Midwest, posted a two win, six loss, one tie, record. In the first game of the season we were defeated by Davenport West, who later became one of the top teams in the state. The score was 32-20, with Bill Jakubsen scoring all three Clinton touchdowns. We next opened at home against Iowa City and the Little Hawks. The final score was 14-0, Iowa City, in a game which could have gone either way. The fine line play of Doug Brown was starting to be recognized by fans and opponents as well, as the River Kings began to prepare for undefeated Rock Island. The River Kings lost their third straight start to the little but fast Rocks. Featuring a backfield that looked more like a sprint relay than a football team, the game was closer than expected as the final score was 14-6. Our fourth game was with Cedar Rapids Jefferson, ranked at that time number one in the state. It was Clinton's Homecoming which is one thing the J-Hawks had possibly overlooked. Clinton came behind from a 7-point deficit to tie the visitors on a Tom Hagge end sweep. Jeff scored again before the half but Clinton was still close.

The second half was a different story as the J-Hawks scored 20 points to win, 33-7.

(Enter COACH and JIM.)

Say, coach, can you fill us in on some of the better games of the season?

COACH: The following week we decided we had been on the losing end long enough. We traveled down to Moline for their Homecoming and defeated them as we came from behind to win 14-13 in a real squeaker. Our come-back continued the next week against Assumption as we managed a tie. Although thoroughly outplayed, our fighting spirit prevailed as we scored two touchdowns in a 12-12 tie.

JIM: Then in our next game as we returned to Valley play, Cedar Rapids Washington, ranked fourth in the state at gametime, trounced us 27-7. For our next to last game, the East Moline Panthers came to town as our team played its worst game of the year. The final score of 19-0 was practically expected as our team was listless from the start of the game.

NARRATOR: Dubuque was our last game as we won by a 13-0 score. Post season honors to River Kings included a second team All-Valley berth for Doug Brown as well as All-State and an honorable mention for Bill Jackubsen on the All-Valley team as a fullback. How about some information about the sophomores and how they fared their first year at it?

Coach: Our River King yearlings finished the season with a 4-6 record overall and a 4-4 record in the Valley. After a dismal four game losing streak to open the year, our young men made an about-face and won four of their last six games. This turnabout was capped by a 32-6 win over Dubuque in the last game of the season. The victory was even more significant when the Dubuque coach had praised his team as the best sophomore team he had ever coached. Sophomore football in the Valley is usually a rude awakening to the junior-high grads, who have played small schools. The long practices, both sophomore and varsity, in 85-95° heat, are finally rewarded with rugged games.

NARRATOR: The season is over now; not too successful as far as victories go, but well played and interesting all the way.

NARRATOR: Pom poms, cheers, school spirit, crowds, plans--this is Homecoming 1962. These things make up all homecomings, but this one is probably pretty special to you people who are helping to make it. Preparations are beginning with homerooms making plans for their floats. Let's drop in on one of those meetings.

(Spotlight on homeroom. Enter SENIORS)

PRESIDENT: All right, now, if we are going to have a float we'd better get organized. Homecoming is only a couple of weeks away. Does anybody have any ideas for the theme?

(There is a pause)

Well, do you want a float or don't you? If you do you'd better get some ideas and plan to work.

KAY: We'll try to, but we have the dance to work on, too, this year.

NARRATOR: Besides the work and play of Homecoming, there's another part, too, an important part that you might call pagentry and tradition. It's Thursday now and students are crowding into the auditorium to watch the coronation of the queen and attendants... Now the sophomore attendant, Susie Low, is being escorted to the stage by Sophomore President Paul Peterson... Corky Blandford is now escorting Pam Whalen, the Junior attendant, to the stage... The Senior attendant is Carol Putney and she is being escorted by Steve Mayer, Senior President... Now a hush is settling over the students as Larry Davis commands all eyes... The 1962 Homecoming Queen is... Pam Fisher... The assembly is over now. Let's talk to an excited Queen for a minute and see how she feels.

(Enter PAM)

Congratulations, Pam!

PAM: Oh, thank you, I am so excited--It's too good to be true. This is going to be the best Homecoming ever.

NARRATOR: I'm sure it will be. We'll see you later, Pam.

(Spotlight follows NARRATOR to stage center. Friday's Pep Assembly. The students in casual attire are leaving the Auditorium.)

NARRATOR: Well, the school day is over for the students now. They've just left the Pep Assembly where the spirit was overwhelming. Next on the Homecoming agenda is the parade. Every year the students work hard to make it better than ever. But yet, it's more than just floats and marching units--it's a symbol of the work to make it a successful Homecoming, and the hopes for the coming game. After the parade there will be a new addition to Homecoming--a surprise pep rally for the players. They don't know it yet, but many students are coming back to school at 5:45 to add even more enthusiasm to this year's Homecoming. I probably won't see you until after the game.

The Cheerleaders and Choir invoke the spirit of Homecoming at the Pep Assembly.

Many hours of planning and hard work on the part of the homerooms culminated in the pageantry of a Homecoming parade.

First place--humorous division

First place--formal division

A new addition to this year's Homecoming is the surprise pep rally for the team before the game.

NARRATOR: We'll have to admit it--we lost the Homecoming game, 33-7, but then Cedar Rapids Jefferson is rated number one in the state. The game itself was a well-played one, and that's what counts. Now the students and visiting alumni are going to the Chee Cha Cha Ha Ha Cha Cha Cha dance put on by the Senior class. Let's follow some of them over.

CHRIS: Isn't it hard to believe that after the dance the 1962 Homecoming will be over?

The Royal Court watches half-time activity...

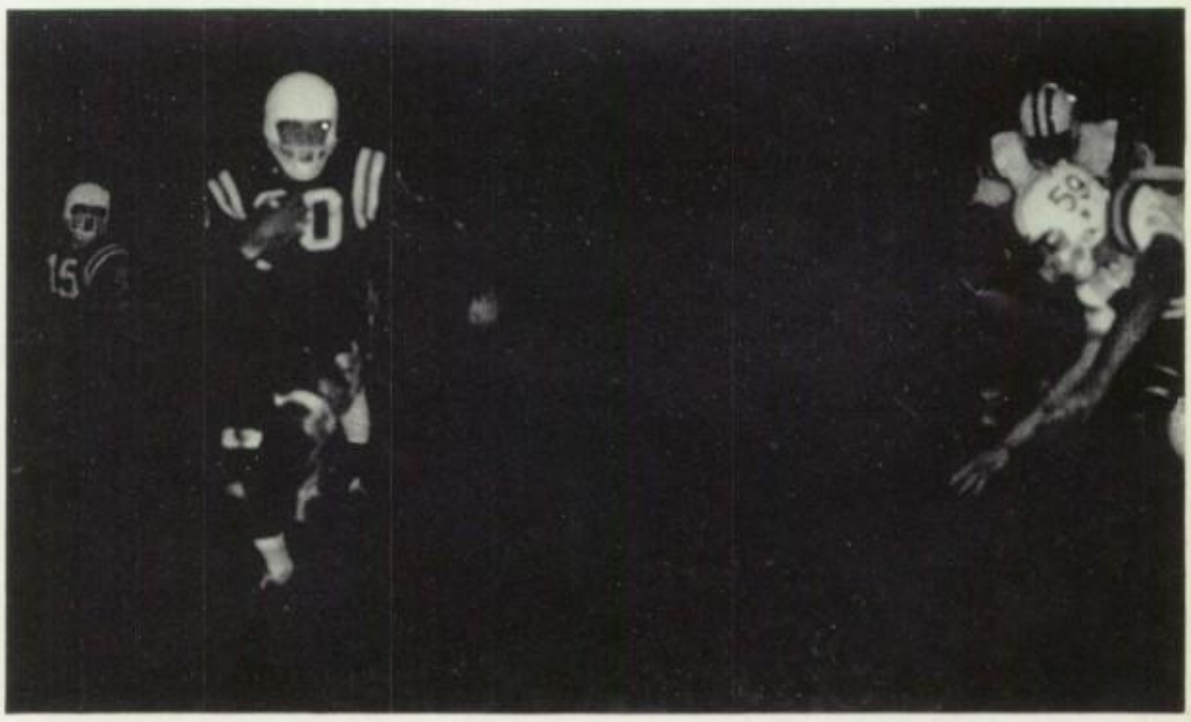
Pep Club and Cheerleaders give the boys an added boost.

PAUL: Dont, get so sentimental--there will be other homecomings.

CHRIS: I hope so! I wish that more people would have stuck closer to better conduct. I'd hate to think of this being the last Homecoming at CHS.

PAUL: Yea, that snake dance was pretty stupid. But, then, the rest of the week's activities kind of outweigh it.

NARRATOR: Yes--that's right. The homerooms worked hard on their floats all week, the students showed fine enthusiasm at the pep rallies, and the team played a good game. The good we did far outweighs the bad. Let's go into the dance, now, OK?



A successful pass to a River King adds to the excitement of the game.

NARRATOR. Homecoming is over now. It's been over for nearly a month. The students' interests have been aroused by the approaching fall play, an annual production by Little Theater. The members of the club co-operate to achieve the end result, doing all the acting, costuming, set designing and countless other tasks that go into the making of a play. The dress rehearsal will be starting soon. Oh, yes, in case I forgot, the name of the fall play is "Good-Night, Ladies."

TOM: Boy, I sure feel silly dressed up like an old woman. Look at this crazy wig.

SANDY: Oh, come on. You know you'll enjoy every minute of it--you're nothing but a ham.

PAT: I sure hope this play goes over all right. I'll just die if the kids don't think it's funny.

BOB: Oh, I'm not worried about that. All I have to do is to keep from laughing myself.

VICKI: Well, if we don't get busy and work we won't even be ready by Friday night. Let's see Act II...Bob, from the wig part.

BOB: (as FLORA). "What happened? Did you take your wig off and scare her?"

TOM (as BARBARA). "SCARE her. She scared me."

SANDY (as JANE). "Did she see you with that wig off?"

TOM (as BARBARA). "Yes, I took it off. But it's all right. She said she wouldn't tell anybody who I was."

SANDY (as JANE). "Sounded as if she was telling the world. Oh, Oh! Here comes Judy. Go and fix your wig."

NARRATOR: As the cast returns to work, we'll take a look at some of the behind-the-scenes activity. There's a group of industrious looking students back here. Let's see what they're doing.

(Exit all but NARRATOR who moves with spotlight to Center. Enter RITA and GRACE)

RITA: How many more signs do we have to make?

GRACE: As many as we can. After all, we're not going to make any money if we don't get some publicity so we'll have a good turn out.

RITA: Well, we'll make one more sign and then let's call it a night.

NARRATOR: Mind if I come in? I was just wondering how you were coming.

GRACE: Pretty good--

NARRATOR: Do you expect a lot of people to be at the play?

GRACE: I sure hope so. I know they'll like it if they come. It's really a riot.

NARRATOR: I know that this is Little Theatre's big project, but would you tell us a little more about the club?

RITA: Sure. The whole club is made up of students interested in drama. You must earn three points in drama work to become a pledge member and get ten to be a regular member.

GRACE: We meet once a month and the kids participate in skits, dramatic readings, and other things pertaining to drama.

NARRATOR: Thank you. I suppose I had better let you get back to work. I hope the play is successful.

RITA. Oh, I'm sure it will be. We've put in a lot of work and it's the kind of play the students and their parents will enjoy.

KAREN. We ought to--we've practiced long enough.

PAT. Well, it has to be right. The induction is probably the most important thing we do, and it has to be impressive so that Thespians will mean something to the new members.

NARRATOR. Maybe you can tell me something about the club they're being inducted into.

PAT. I'll try. I suppose you'd call it an honorary organization in dramatics. To become a member, you have to do a lot of work, earning points by working on plays and other productions.

NARRATOR. I was just wondering how National Thespians is related to Little Theatre.

KAREN. Well, most of the new members are also in Little Theatre. They earned their membership by working on the fall play. This induction will be their reward for...well, I guess you'd say "additional service" to dramatics.

TOM. Well, you're seeing one of our most important activities now, the Varsity Drag. We have it every year, and members and their dates take part in sports and dancing.

NARRATOR. It sounds like a project that is looked forward to each year. Could you tell me something about your other activities?

STEVE. Right now we're in the process of changing the constitution and reorganizing the club. We're planning on having a student board of review, who would screen all letter winners for membership in the club, making the club more of an honor for those in it. It's a big job, but one that we feel should be done for the future of the club. We also hope to undertake more projects next year.

TOM. And another thing we've tried to do this year is bolster school spirit, especially at athletic events. And that means ALL athletic events!

NARRATOR. I'm sure you've helped, and I know you will go on serving the school. Good luck on revising the Constitution.

NARRATOR. I can see that it isn't. Where do you get the formations for the marches each time?

JOYE. We make up our own marches. Four or five members are assigned to make up each march. We usually revise them somewhat as we practice.

NARRATOR. How are the fifty girls chosen for Pep Club?

ANN. We hold tryouts every spring after Pep Club members have taught any interested girls the basic routines. Then a panel of teachers and students, who are already Pep Club members, choose those whose MARILYN. Yes, we went to Rock Island and Cedar Rapids Jefferson.

MISS WELCH. In previous years we have been able to attend only one, but this year we were able to afford two trips.

Three Definite

NARRATOR. A team that was composed ultimately of juniors finished the season for Clinton's River Kings with a 10-12 record. The cagers started the year with four seniors and one letterman and finished the year with only one upperclassman. Letterman and high scorer Dave Seematter was stricken with hepatitis and played last game at Rock Island on February 1.

COACH. Yes, his loss was deeply felt, but even though he did not play the final four Valley games and the four tournament games, he was named to the Mississippi Valley All-Conference second team. Our remaining senior, Dick Luett, got his first starting role after Seematter's illness and turned out to be perhaps the best guard in this part of the state.

ROW TWO: Coach Lehr, Bradley, Wentworth, Hansen, Rasmussen, TenBoer, Reed, Backlund, Stacup, Wildman, Coach Pollack.

Highpoints

NARRATOR. This season had three definite high points. The first victory over West in the Falcon's gym--the first time in two years that Coach Harv Schmidt had been beaten in his own gym. The second came when in the most spirited game of the season, the Kings dealt the East Moline Panthers their first loss. The third high point of the season was, of course, the victory over St. Mary's by a 57-50 score. Crippled by the loss of Seematter and St. Clair's sprained ankle, the Kings won with five starters playing "iron man" roles.

COACH. These three games were filled with rousing spirit of the students. Spirit that assured the boys of the victories they deserved. Pep Club and Letterman's Club both helped a lot by sitting together and leading the students by cheering together. Letterman's Club even made signs to boost the moral of the team and school. The cheerleaders as usual did more than their part in this all-out effort to win by their enthusiastic cheering. All in all, the whole student body brought out the real spirit of CHS on those three nights.

NARRATOR. The St. Mary's game was your last victory of the season then, wasn't it?

COACH. Yes. West decked us in the first round of sub-state.

NARRATOR. You were defeated by a very methodical and efficient team, though.

COACH. Right. But next year we'll be loaded for victories with starters Mike Eberle, Rich Hodges, Butch Gray, Bill Jakubsen, and Mark St. Clair returning for action. Jurgen Duhr, who started a couple of early season games, will also be back along with the entire bench. These boys have all had a wealth of experience that should definitely help us go all the way next year.

NARRATOR. Hi, there. I was just on my way down to the wrestling room, but if you've got a minute maybe you could tell me a little about how this year's swimming team did.

the state swimming championship, was just out of reach as we finished in a second place tie with Cedar Rapids Washington, 14 points out of first.

NARRATOR. Who did win?

COACH. Our old arch-rival, Des Moines Roosevelt.

NARRATOR. Well, let's turn to some of the brighter spots of the season. You must have had quite a few with a 9-3 record.

COACH. There was the District championship, of course, and Clinton High's first Mississippi Valley Conference title. To win this one, our tankers had to beat Iowa power house Washington and such Illinois strongholds as Moline and Rock Island. In the district meet, we started off with a bang in two ways. In the very first event of the finals, the medley relay, our team of Mike Radice, Larry Stover, Trainor Critz, and Tom Mayer streaked to a time of 1:46.8, well under the state record. However the team was disqualified when an over-exuberent swimmer jumped into the pool before the race had officially ended. This cost the team 14 points in both district and state.

NARRATOR. I won't keep you any longer. Thanks.

(Exit COACH.)

NARRATOR. It was a season of fine performances the year around. Perhaps the most outstanding individual was junior Bud Kearney. He turned in outstanding times in both the 200 with a 1:56.4 and the 400 with a 4:19.0. Mike Eckman, another junior was an outstanding member of this year's team also. Competing in the District, he set a record of 1:06.7 in the breast-stroke and a school record in the individual medley with 2:17.0, beating Dan Jefferies' record. Both relay teams were outstanding, and seniors Tom Mayer, Chuck Lentz, Mike Radice, Trainor Critz, and Rich Johannsen were valuable members who will be missed. Chuck Lentz set a school record, district record, and pool record in the 50 freestyle with 23.0 time. All in all, it was a very good season.

Tragedies Mar Wrestling Season

(NARRATOR approaches stage center where COACH sits on stool checking in wrestling uniforms.)

NARRATOR. How was the wrestling season this year, Coach?

COACH. Well, we finished the season with a record of no wins and 17 defeats in dual meets. In spite of this we never failed to produce a meet with its exciting moments. Clinton fans could usually be assured of a victory in the first match at 95 pounds from Bob Rajcevich, another at 127 from Dave Meyers, and a third at the class Dick Taylor was competing at, whether it was 180 or heavyweight. The inconsistency of the other weight classes was the factor that usually spelled defeat for us.

NARRATOR. How do things look for you next year?

COACH. Well, the future isn't nearly so bad as the record makes it seem. Of all wrestlers throughout the season, the only letter winners were juniors or sophomores.

NARRATOR. The season was ended on a tragic note when the night before the district wrestling meet junior Bob Racjevich was fatally injured in an automobile accident and his team-mate Dick Taylor seriously injured. This accident followed the death of another Clinton High wrestler, Dennis Johannson, in a hunting accident.

COACH. By common consent we decided to withdraw from district competition.

(Spotlight on Stage Center. MEMBERS and NARRATOR are on stage just before the induction ceremony.)

ELLYN. Well, Honor Society is a small group of students chosen because of their achievements in the general areas of character, scholarship, leadership, and service.

NARRATOR. It sounds like it's a fairly exclusive group. What are some of your activities?

JERRY. Since we're an honorary organization, we don't do too much in the line of projects, like other clubs. But then part of our purpose is to give recognition to the students who have made achievements in those other clubs. I suppose the inductions are probably our most important activities.

NARRATOR. I'm sorry to interrupt, but perhaps you could tell me a little about Student Council.

LYNN. Sure. Of course Council is the student government, as you probably know. Members are elected by the student body. One of the main jobs then is discussing some of the problems of students and the school and taking action on them.

NARRATOR. What is this meeting here?

LYNN. This is an FES committee meeting. Councilmen are divided into committees which meet weekly and in which a great deal of the actual work is done.

NARRATOR. What are you working on now?

LYNN. Well, we're working on plans for a student-faculty game to raise money for our FES fund. FES is Council's responsibility, and we have money-making projects like bake sales, car washes, and selling Shares of Democracy during the year. We also continued our radio program called "AFS Spotlight" which has been very successful. All of these projects are to raise money and boost our Students' Abroad Program. Each summer we send a student, and every year a foreign student studies here at CHS.

BILL. These projects also help develope better relations between the students and the community. Most of our projects are ones in which the whole student body can participate.

Norse Ambassador of Good Will (Spotlight on Stage Center. SCENE. NARRATOR and JAN are seated in a classroom.

NARRATOR. Our foreign exchange student at CHS this year is Jan Rolland from Heggedal, Norway. He is staying with the Clinton Blandford family. Jan, tell us how you felt when you came here.

JAN. Well, I worried a bit at first about how good a representative I would make for my country in making speeches and meeting people in the U. S., but I forgot about that soon--there was too much to look forward to to worry. I decided that I would just be myself and everything would work out for the best.

NARRATOR. It looks like being yourself has worked pretty well. What do you find different about CHS?

JAN. In Norway, we have twelve or thirteen subjects with a different schedule every day. We have no study halls and a lot of homework, but school is out at 1:40, so it isn't too bad.

NARRATOR. What subjects are you taking this year at CHS?

JAN. This year I am taking English 11, Social Studies 11 and 12, psychology, and typing.

NARRATOR. What do you like to do in your spare time here and in Norway?

JAN. I like to go to all the games and mixers and "club". Since I enjoy sports, I am out for track. I also have a hobby of photography. In Norway I do just about the same things except that in the winter we ski and do other things like that.

NARRATOR. Do you think you have profited from coming to America?

JAN. Oh yes. I have got to know Americans better through living with them and by now I feel like an American myself. I hope to go back to Norway and tell people things about the American way of life that they have never heard before. Of course, I hope the school and community know more about Norway since I've been here too.

NARRATOR. Jan, before I go, is there any thought you would like to leave us with?

JAN. I wish you would have a better understanding of Norway in general, and also how important international friendship is for world peace. About myself, I would like you to remember, if nothing else, that there once was a Norwegian AFS student by the name of Jan Rolland at CHS.

NARRATOR. Thank you, Jan. I'm sure that anyone who has known you during your year here will never forget you.

(Spotlight out. Exit NARRATOR and JAN.)

A Brain in Spain

(Spotlight on Stage Center. SCENE. NARRATOR and VICKI are seated in classroom.)

NARRATOR. Vicki, you were CHS's representative abroad last summer, weren't you? Could you tell us something about where you went?

VICKI. I started my trip to Barcelona, Spain, on June 15 when I took a train from Chicago to Montreal, and there boarded the MS SEVEN SEAS for a ten day sail to Rotterdam, Netherlands. There I took a train through Paris to Barcelona. Barcelona is on the Mediterranean Sea and is very picturesque and romantic.

NARRATOR. What was your Spanish family like?

VICKI. There were seven of them. My Mama and Papa, Senores Ramon Masromon, my 18-year-old sister Matilde, and four brothers, Jorge, 16, Javier, 13, Juaqcian, 9, and Ramon, 7. We lived in an 8-room apartment in the center section of the city most of the time, but during July we moved to a suburb just a 15-minute walk from the beach.

NARRATOR. What did you find different about Spain?

VICKI. Well, of course there's the famous Spanish siesta every afternoon. The food is different but delicious. Everything is cooked in olive oil and there is lots of salt fish, rarely any vegetables except potatoes and beans. All the meals are formal with about four or five courses, and there is usually only wine to drink.

NARRATOR. What are some of the most interesting things you did while there?

VICKI. I did some sightseeing and saw six bullfights that I really enjoyed. Dating is different there, as kids go in groups with chaperones and attend street dances that last from 11 to 3 a.m. About the most exciting thing was when I was serenaded on Saturday night by about ten Spanish boys.

NARRATOR. It sure sounds like you had a wonderful time.

VICKI. I sure did. The people were so nice to me and the kids were just the same as here. I hope to study languages in college, perhaps major in them, and someday soon return to Spain.

NARRATOR. I'm certain that you were a fine representative of our youth here in America and one that Clinton High School can be very proud of. Thank you so much for telling us about your experiences, Vicki. I sincerely hope that someday you can go back to Spain.

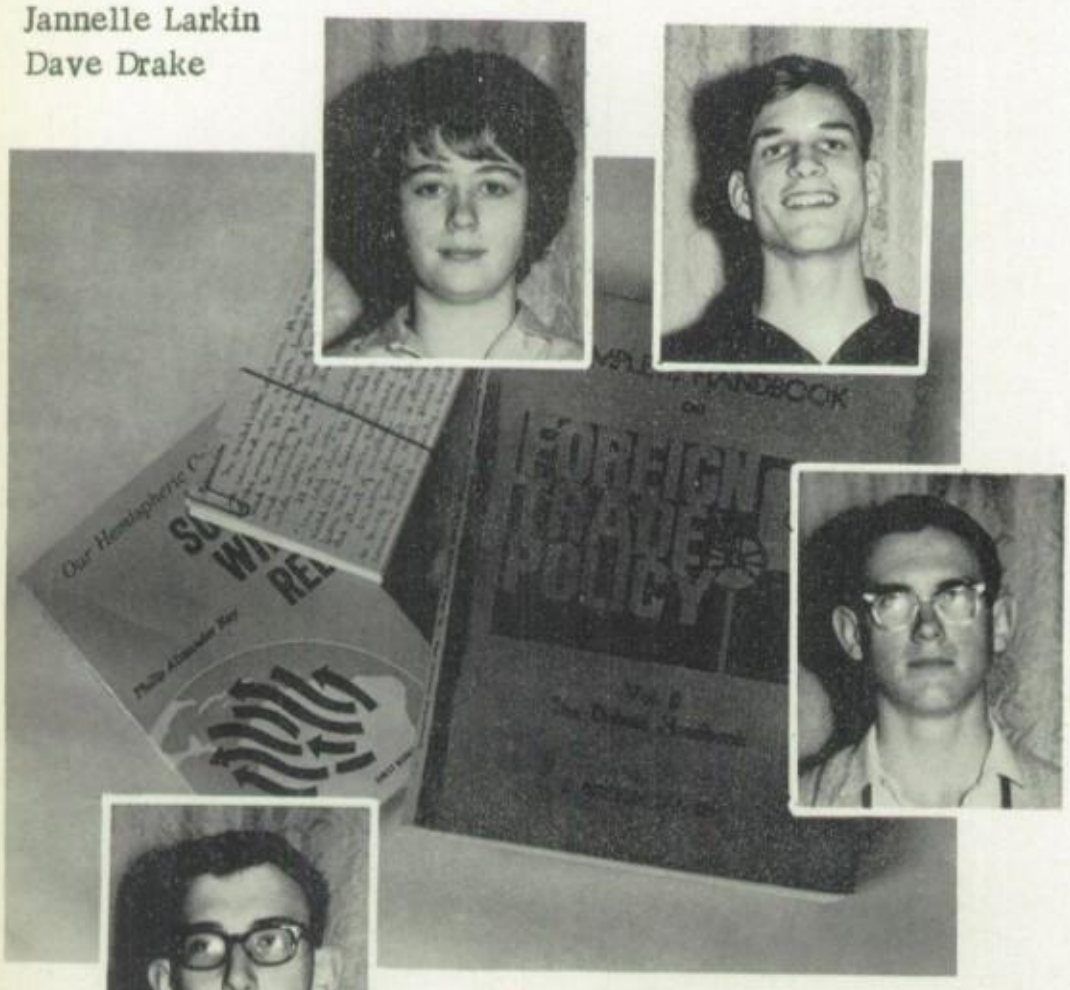
DAVE. The residual benefits derived from the common market would be minimal.
NARRATOR. Sorry to interrupt, but...
DAVE. What do you want?
NARRATOR. I was just wondering if you would tell me about debate?
KEN. I suppose we could take a minute out.
NARRATOR. What kind of year have you had?

Negative:
Jannelle Larkin
Dave Drake



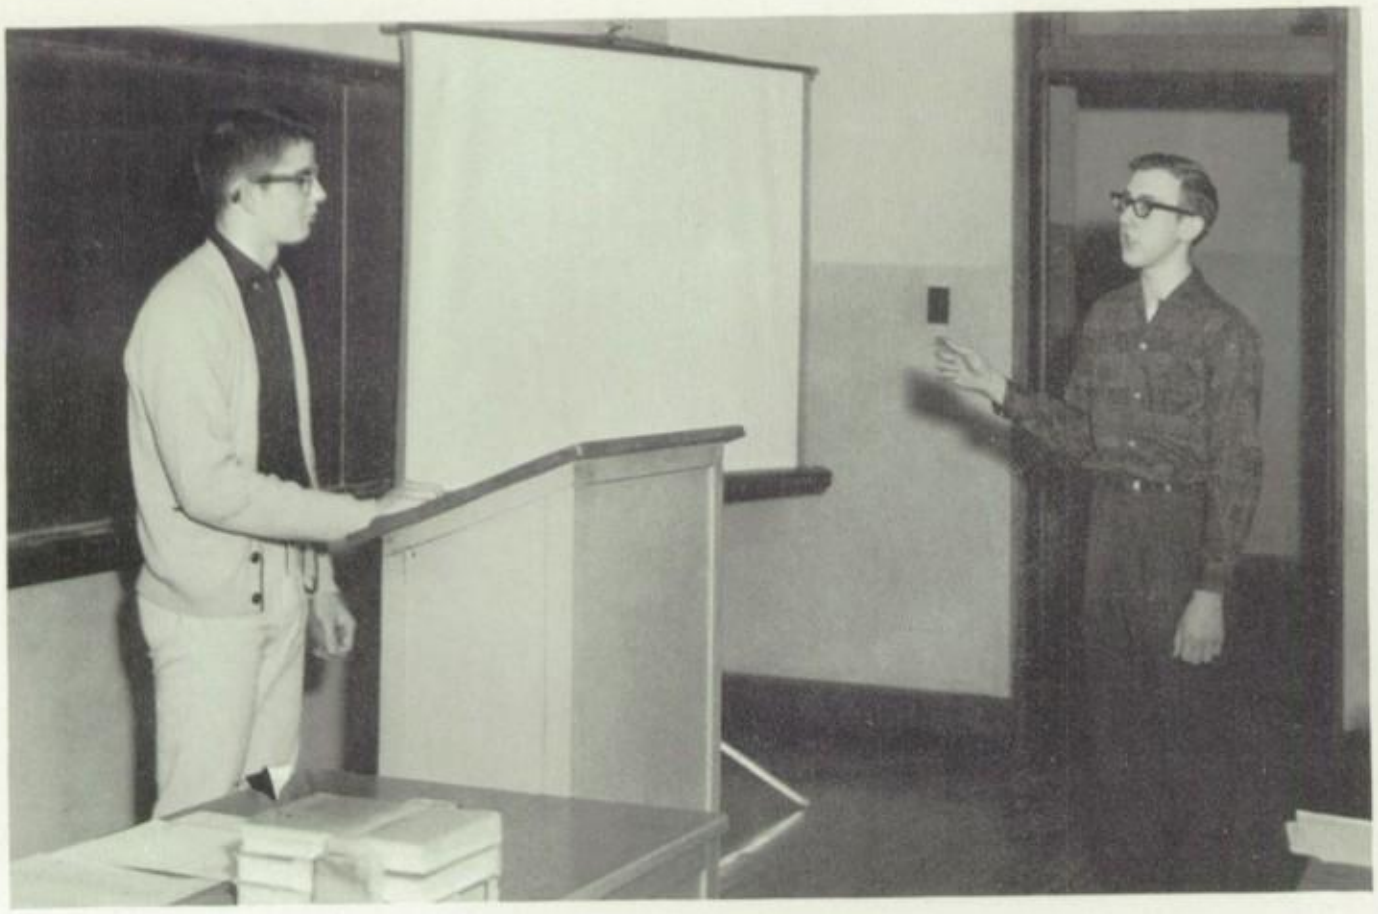
Affirmative:
Brian Reynolds
Kenneth Olson

DAVE. We got a pretty late start this year, and with only four members on the varsity team we had a tough time doing well.

KEN. Right now we're practicing for the state tournament to be held at Grinnell, March 29. There are only three seniors in debate this year, but recently we had four juniors join the varsity, and they'll be ready to debate in the state tournament.

NARRATOR. I hope you do well. What about prospects for next year?

DAVE. Well, there are quite a few sophomores in debate this year, about forty I think. They seem to be interested, and I imagine some of them will continue on in debate next year. They've been debating all year to get experience and will be in their first tournament at Davenport in late April.



NARRATOR. Could you tell me some of the things you've gained from participating in debate?

KEN. Well, of course you learn a great deal about your topic and become more well versed in current events.

DAVE. Most important you learn how to defend your arguments smoothly and become an assured speaker in class and in public.

NARRATOR. Well, I had better let you boys go back to practicing. Good luck at the State Tournament.

NARRATOR. Hello there. This is Pollywogs, isn't it?

CAROL. Yes.

NARRATOR. I'm afraid I don't quite understand what Pollywogs is. Could you tell me a little more about it?

CAROL. Well, it's made up of a group of girls who are interested in swimming. We learn new strokes and stunts which we put to use in the spring water show.

NARRATOR. Spring water show?

CAROL. The girls get in small groups of about four to six and work up a synchronized swimming act. They choose their music, design costumes, and work out their own choreography.

LEFT TO RIGHT: Waters, Sheller, Tolson, Schlotfeldt, Heilman, Bredow, Anspach, Brandenburg, Jurgensen, Walters, Low.

It's a lot of fun, but an awful lot of work, too.

NARRATOR. What's the theme of this year's show?

PAT. It's "Channel Swim" and all the music will be themes from TV shows. They'll have about ten numbers, a special one by the four officers, and a solo by the president. The Tadpoles will be doing a number, too.

NARRATOR. Who are the Tadpoles?

PAT. Tadpoles are the group of girls who are in their first year of synchronized swimming. Next year they will be promoted to Pollywogs.

NARRATOR. What are some of their activities?

PAT. Well, most of the year is spent in learning the art of synchronized swimming. They did put on a show for the Junior Carnival called "Swimming Safari" this year. And of course, they have their number in the spring show.

NARRATOR. Well, thanks for taking time out to tell me about the clubs. I'll let you get back to practice now.

JOYE: These wreaths certainly are neat.

BARB: They ought to be, after all the work we've put into making them.

NARRATOR: I suppose you girls are getting ready for the Latin Club banquet.

BARB: Yes, we're almost finished making the decorations.

NARRATOR: Well, then, I guess you could tell me a little about the club. What else do you do through the year?

JOYE: The idea behind it is to interest students in the ancient Romans and the Latin language. We have films, plays, and other programs at our morning meetings.

BARB: Our big project is the Latin banquet, when all the members dress up in Roman costumes and stage an actual dinner in Roman style with slaves and everything. There are even prizes for the best costumes and hair styles.

JOYE: This year the entertainment at the banquet will be an ancient Roman wedding. It really should be a lot of fun.

NARRATOR: It sounds like it will be. Good-bye.

NARRATOR. Are you the director?

MR. DEHAAN. Yes, how did the group sound to you?

NARRATOR. Fine, I wish I could have heard more.

MR. DEHAAN. We're practicing for Tri-Double I, an annual music festival among the schools of Clinton, Freeport, and Dubuque. We alternate between towns each year, and come together to sing with a guest director. This year it is being held in Clinton. The Choir, Orchestra, and Band members house the guests from the visiting schools. We practice together for two days and present a concert for the public the last night. It is always an event looked forward to by all.

BARBARA: We sang in "The Messiah" with the Community Chorus again, too.

LINDA: We learn a lot about music. Most of us are sight reading now and learning more about different key signatures and rhythms. Next year, we are all hoping to be in A"Capella choir.

NARRATOR: I'm sure that this year will be fine training for A'Capella. Music is a wonderful way to spend your spare time, and a growing appreciation for all types of music will help you all your life.

NARRATOR: One of the most active organizations at CHS and one of the most beneficial to students is orchestra. Each year students work hard to present four or five public concerts as well as participate in the Tri-Double I Festival. In conjunction with orchestra there are two smaller groups, String Ensemble, which provides entertainment for community clubs, and Symphonette, which played for the first time for the community production of the Messiah. In its many capacities, we see, CHS orchestra contributes both to the community and the students who take part in the activities of the group.

Mark St. Clair should help bolster the high jump. Fall track had a pretty fair season even though we lost Rich Wright and Bob Holmes.

NARRATOR. What are some of your projects?

LINDA. Members work on a voluntary basis at the bloodmobile and the V.A. We help collect money for the TB drive and last December we visited old peoples peoples' homes and helped to decorate Christmas trees.

PAT: The idea behind the whole thing is to inform interested girls about nursing careers. We have a pamphlet file and monthly programs dealing with nursing careers.

JOANNE: In the future, we hope to have a scholarship for a CHS girl going into nurse's training.

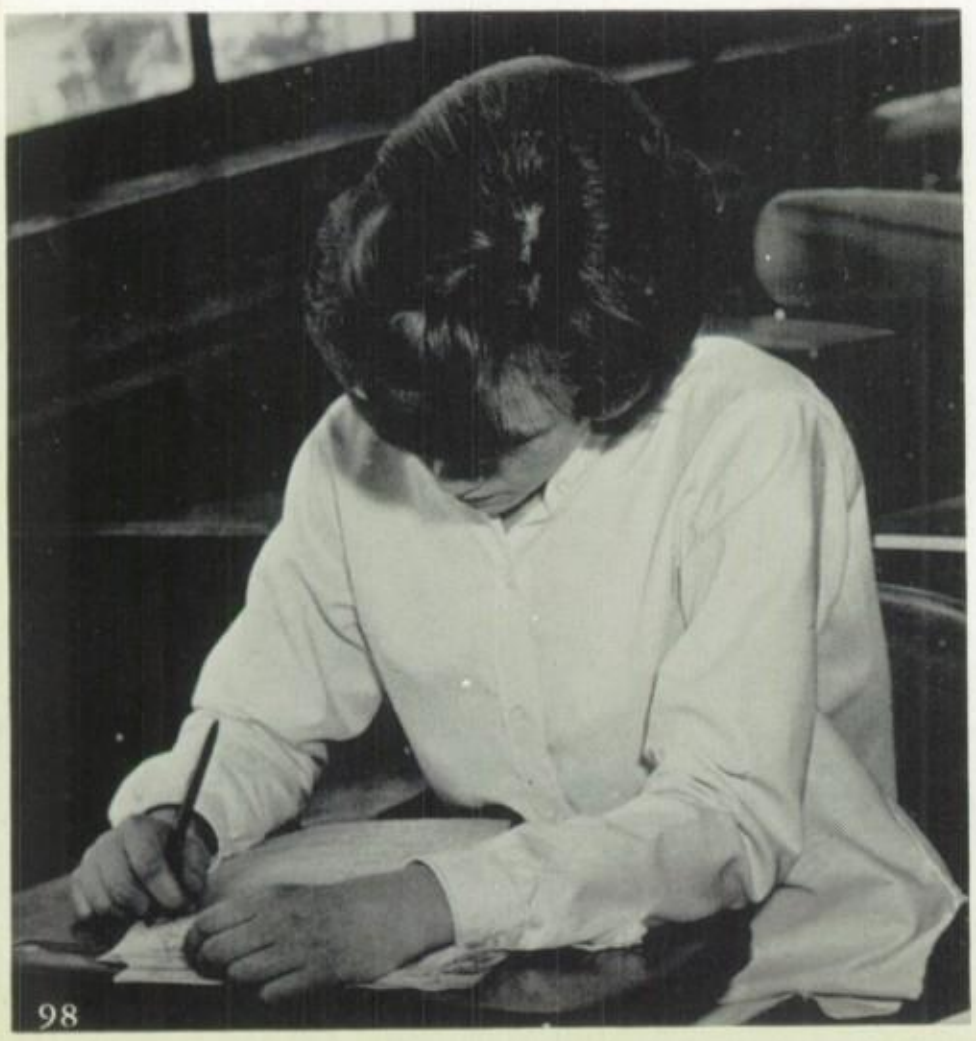
Textbooks and Tutors



(NARRATOR enters classroom in which a tutor is helping a student)

MARY: Now, let's go over this math again. This theorem at the bottom of the page is very important. You've got to understand it, or you can't do the problems in this assignment.

KAY: But I just don't understand it.

MARY: Sometimes I wonder how I ever got "A's" in this subject last year! It isn't as easy as it was then.

NARRATOR: I was just wondering if you could give me some information about FTA. Are you a member?

MARY: Yes, this tutoring I am doing right now is a part of the club's work. If you have a "B" average in some subject and want to help someone in his studying, during some study halls or homeroom each week, you meet with the students. Some others are also teacher helpers. They work during study halls, too, correcting papers and tests, monitoring tests, recording and figuring grades, running errands for the teacher, typing up work sheets and tests, totaling points, and helping clean up the room and desks. This is a great aid to the teacher, as he can spend more time on actual teaching.

NARRATOR: It sounds like you are all putting in a lot of time helping students and faculty alike. What do you, as a member, get out of it?

MARY: The main idea is for students interested in the career of teaching to get a glimpse of what it would really be like. Besides the actual teacher helping and the tutoring, we have meetings at which teachers tell us about the many aspects of the career. We have had several outside speakers this year, too, who have told us about different types of teaching, such as retarded or gifted children.

NARRATOR: It sounds like you learn a lot while actually serving your school. I hope that many of you are actually our "future teachers of America". Thank you for the information, and keep up the good work!

(NARRATOR exits and MARY and KAY go back to studying.)

Quiet, Please . . .

NARRATOR: The students of the library homeroom assist the librarian in many tasks. Could you tell us a little about some of them?

ANN: Well, we check the books in and out, find references for students, file cards, take library pasess to study halls, and prepare the list for the office of those who came to the library during the day.

JANICE: Don't forget that we help Miss Warnock in taking inventory each year.

MIKE: That's right, and we all have a certain section of the library to keep dusted and in order, which is really a job sometimes.

(Enter MISS WARNOCK)

MISS WATNOCK: It's a job well done, though. You are all a great help to me in running an efficient library.

NARRATOR: Thank you all. I'll leave you now so you can get back to your important work. I'm sure all the school is grateful for your services and at the same time you are learning to take responsibility. For those of you who are planning on librarian work as a career, this is an excellent learning situation.

(Spotlight on stage center. Scene: Room 127. Enter NARRATOR, PAM, LINDA, MARY, ELLYN, BRIAN, AND RUTHANNE.)

NARRATOR: In room 127 the sound of typewriters can always be heard either for the Clintonian magazine or the Yearbook. Let's step in a second and see what all the bustle is about.

PAM: Oh, these paste-up days--they never seem long enough.

NARRATOR: How often do you publish the magazine?

LINDA: Every month. It's a lot of work, making assignments, layouts, and proofreading, but it's interesting, and there's never a dull moment!

NARRATOR: Let's see what's going on in that little room back there...

MARY: I sure hope we can make this next deadline. Sixty pages by Monday! That's sure going to be close.

ELLYN: Don't worry, we'll make it. We always do. We have most of the copy finished, and all the layouts seem to be coming along fine.

NARRATOR: It sounds like you have quite a task!

BRIAN: It'll be worse than that if we don't get busy.

RUTHANNE: We have a good staff to help us though, and it's been a challenge this year, trying to make the book really represent our year in a new approach.

NARRATOR. Well, I'd better leave you now. I hope you make that deadline.

CAST

(Spotlight on NARRATOR who is standing on the empty, black stage)

NARRATOR: Our play is almost over now. We've shown you all the club activities, taken you to all the important functions, and given you a front row center seat from which to view "Our Year" and reminisce with us. Looking back at our play, you can see that we have covered the subject of our year from start to finish, but we have left the most important part--the cast of our play--until last. All that has gone before could not have occurred if it had not been for you--the actors and actresses. You have played your parts well and worked many hours to make the play a success. So now I would like to give you one last look at the cast of "Our Year" before you leave this auditorium. Look long and hard, for never again through all time and space will they be assembled as they are here to play their separate roles in this, "Our Year."

Student Body Officers

Larry Davis
President

Tom Mayer
Vice-President

(Spotlight on Stage Center. Scene Room 312. Enter NARRATOR and LARRY.)

NARRATOR: The four Student Body Officers worked many hard hours between their election last spring and now. The load of responsibility that the President carries in leading the school and Council through the year is large indeed. I imagine the job takes a lot of your time, Larry.

LARRY: It sure does, but it's worth it. It's quite an experience.

NARRATOR: I suppose it is. Could you tell me a little more about the other officers?

LARRY: Well, they have a lot of work to do, and to do it right really takes concentrated effort. Co-ordinating the activities of Student Council takes teamwork as well as effort on the part of each member. I think the officers have really lived up to their jobs and helped to make Council a success this year.

NARRATOR: I'm sure they have, Larry. It's time for me to leave now and talk to another set of officers who have a big task to accomplish, too, the Senior Class Officers.

(NARRATOR enters Room 303 where a meeting of the SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS is going on.)

NARRATOR: Let's go back to late September when the Senior Class Officers were planning for Homecoming. I think they're having a meeting right now. Say, could I listen in for a minute?

STEVE: Sure, we're just talking about the Homecoming dance. Since it's our last project we have to really make it a great success... What are some other ideas for the theme?

NARRATOR: (to audience) We'd better leave them to their meeting. They have had three successful projects so far: Gateway Classic, Junior Carnival, and Prom; and now they must put the crown on all their achievements as a class. From what I understand their profits from all these projects go for their class gift: a visual remembrance of the Class of '63.

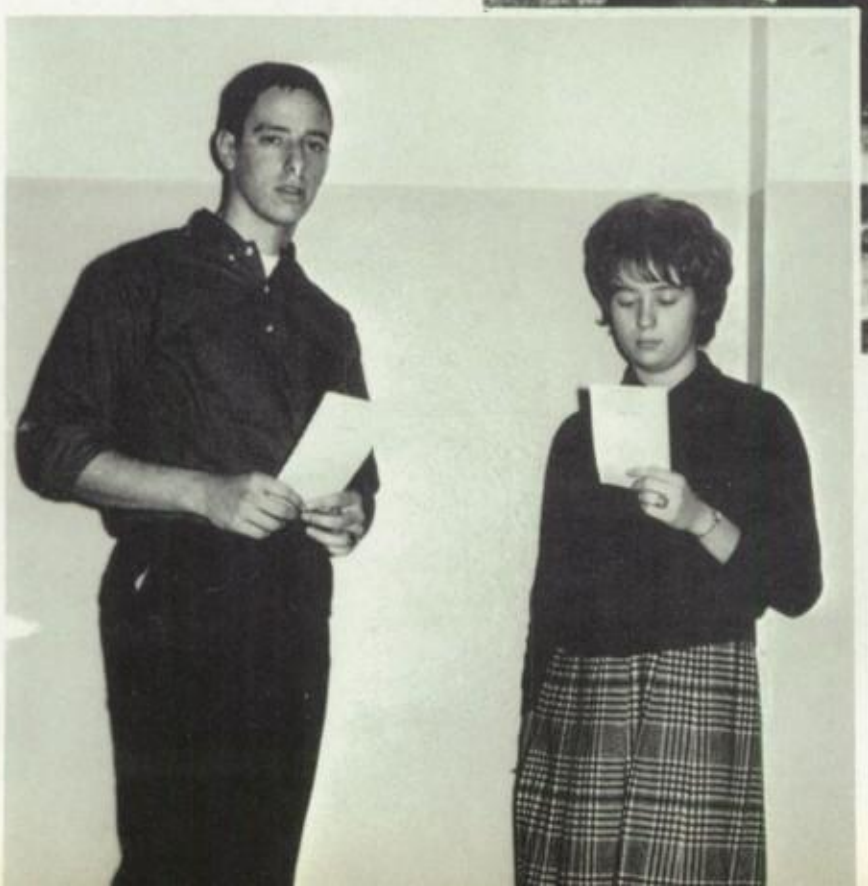
Senior Poll

BEST PERSONALITY
Pam Fisher and Steve Mayer demonstrate that a good personality can open any door.

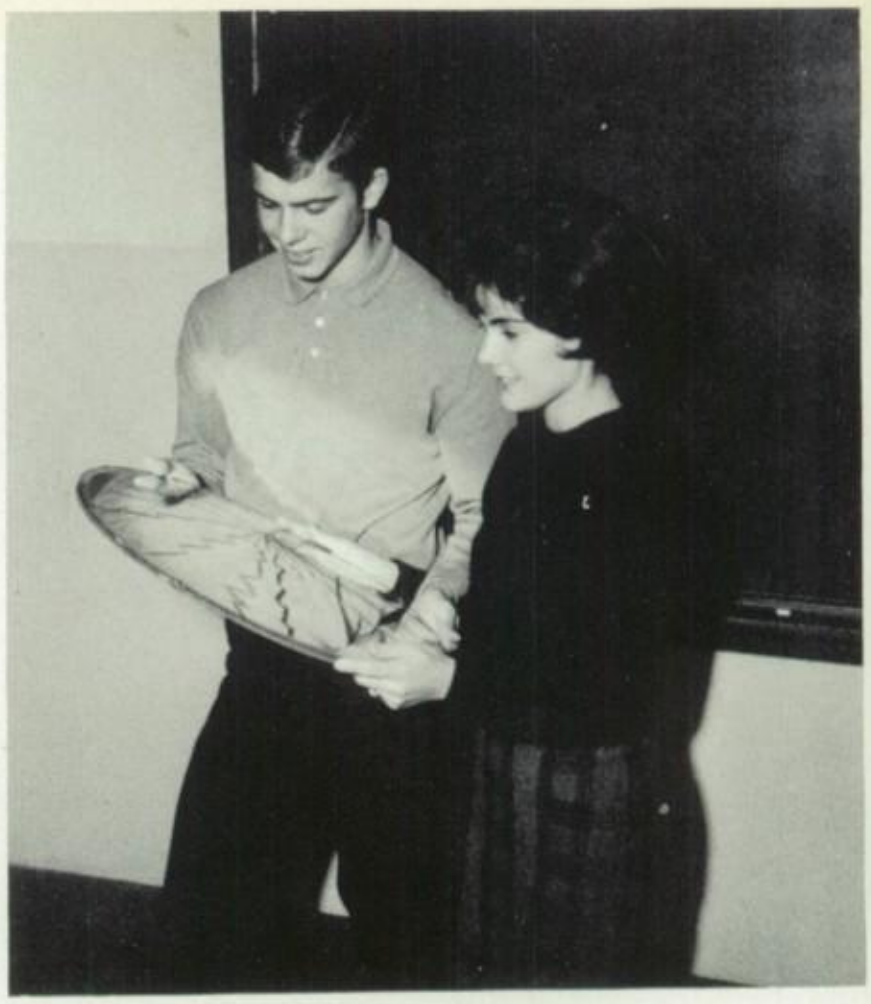
BEST FIGURE AND PHYSIQUE
Jane Morton and Ken Vilmont never worry about brushing between meals. They never stop eating.



BEST HUMOR
Gazing at their report cards, Janelle Larkin and John Carenen are caught in a situation that even the best sense of humor could not salvage.

WOLF AND WOLFESS
Ruthanne Dempsey and Dave Seematter scan the Bobbsey Twin's latest epic for tips on the art of wolfism.

MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED
Ellyn Hessler and Larry Davis pause at the end of a hard day in their careers as Professional Refuse Rennovators and offer a toast to each other with their salvaged milk cartons.



BEST LOOKING
Donna Smith and Chuck Lentz may be the fairest of them all, but this mirror will never make it to the wall.

BEST DANCERS
Modern youth is long on ingenuity as best dancers Dave Smith and Margie Wildman demonstrate a dance of their own creation: The Windmill.

BEST DRESSED
Linda Bicklehaupt and Ed Zastrow would never make the Ten Best Dressed List today, but in 40 B.C. they'd be A-OK.

MOST COURTEOUS
Craig Current wasn't courteous to Chili Qualman, the fair, now he'll have trouble finding a chair.

MOST TALKATIVE
What happens when two talk hawks get laryngitis on the same day? Pat Ellwanger and Bill Theisen solve the problem of frustrated creativity by passing notes.

Junior Class Officers

Corky Blandford, President

(Spotlight on Center. Scene: Room 333. Enter NARRATOR and JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS.)

NARRATOR. The task of the Junior Officers is a big one, for they must lead their class through two events which are of prime importance to Juniors and the whole student body. The Junior Carnival and Prom are events anticipated by all, and they come about only through a great deal of hard work by the Junior Class. These four students must provide the leadership necessary to make these events a success. From this success the impression of the class is formed, and from the profits will come the class gift. Oh, I guess I'm holding up your meeting.

CORKY. That's all right, but we really should get busy on the Carnival plans.

NARRATOR. We'll leave them to their work, now. This is after all, very important to them and to the school.

(Spotlight on Center. Scene: Room 166. Enter NARRATOR.)

NARRATOR. It's April now, Spring athletics are in full swing. The thoughts of sports fans and sophomores have drifted to the Gateway Classics, which comes up next month. This year, as every year, the sophomore class is given their first opportunity to work as a group when they are responsible for the dance after this annual track and field meet. Here they first feel the spirit of working together as a unit which results in the type of co-operation you have just seen in the other classes. The officers pictured here must prove themselves and their class capable of future greatness.

The Drama of Life

"To me it seems as if when God conceived the world, that was poetry;
He varied and colored it, and that was painting;
And then, crowning all, He peopled it with living beings,
And that was the devine, eternal drama."

Charlotte Cushman

Each of you with your own goals and dreams is an actor in the drama of life. Your stage is the world and you have many plots from which to choose. Will your choice, when ready for production, be a smashing hit or a first night failure? And what will make it so?

Shakespeare said: "There's nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so." Decisions based on rational thought and good judgement will be fair decisions for all concerned. The class of 1963 has the capacity and quality to render fair decisions. The world has need for fair-mindedness in its drama of life. Perform well!

Sincere wishes

H. W. Weber

We, the 1963 Clintonian Staff, dedicate this book to our advisor, Mr. Eugene Olson, in the hope that it will serve as a monument to the past six years of service that he has contributed to the Publications department of Clinton High School.

With the desire that it will be a log of the memories of our year, we present the 1963 yearbook to him, and to the student body.
